Curley Kin Land Sale Under Probe

A threatened city council investigation of the disclosure that two in-laws of Mayor Curley had purchased a large tract of city-owned land in Hyde Park for approximately one and a half cents a foot set off a series of rapidfire developments in City Hall today. They were:

(1) Chairman Irving Lewis of the Board of Real Estate Commissioners charged the City Council has no authority over foreclosed real estate and "to assume to control the administrative duties of his department." He said he was undecided whether he would appear before the council next Monday as resuested.

(2) Mayor Hynes ordering "a study of all legal aspects," announced he would take steps to void the sale if the transaction was faulty in any respect.

(3) City Treasurer Henry F. Brennan disclosed he already had signed the deed and believed the sale is now recorded in the registry of deeds—a move which could place the transaction beyond recall.

(4) The City Auditor's office revealed that Richard L. Casey, former street commissioner, Mayor Curley's brother-in-law who is treasurer of Security Homes, Inc., purchasers of the land, has so far this year collected $6040 for his services to the city as a real estate expert.

BRENNAN SIGNED DEED

(5) The Boston Finance Commission announced it was conducting its own probe and charged that Mayor Hynes must have known of the transaction because he would have to sign the deed, "assuming that everything was in proper order."

SALE DEFENDED

6—Officers of the purchasing firm, Casey, his stepson, George E. Dennis of Scituate, secretary, and Francis J. Callahan, of Nottingham rd., Brighton, president, issued a statement defending the transaction as "perfectly legal and above-board."

Lewis said the sale last August was "publicly advertised in Boston newspapers and the City Record," was approved by his foreclosed-real-eestate committee which consists of himself and two unpaid members, William F. Kessler, representing the First National Bank of Boston, and Philip E. Bennett, representing the Shawmust National Bank, and that the papers were drawn by the city law department.

The real estate board chairman said the land purchased consisted of four pieces of property totaling 730,519 square feet and that the sale price was $6800. This land was asessed at $15,300 and unpaid taxes due on it amounted to $6460.

The purchasers said they had bought the land for development and erection of $7000 homes for veterans.

Iowa Happy to Let Hub Cops Have Girl Who Posed as Boy

Mrs. Marjorie Merryfield Hilliard of Sheridan st., Jamaica Plain, 17-year-old, five-feet-two masquerader in boy's clothing, will be most enthusiastically shipped back to Boston if authorities here so desire, it was promised today by officials of Atlantic Ia., where Marjorie is in the clink.

Marjorie, who has roamed into trouble before while posing as a boy, is held there as a juvenile delinquent with a 12-year-old local boy, who allegedly helped her break into a tavern. Her custodians didn't know for 10 days that Marjorie was a girl—and then learned it only when she was subjected to a medical examination required by law.

Sheriff Harry Jordan told the Boston American by telephone:

"I'll bet she has told us 30 different stories about herself but she says she ran away because of friction. She says she dressed like a boy because it was 'easier to get by' that way. I thought that crew hair cut was funny but we didn't discover she was a girl until the doctor finally gave her the routine examination all prisoners get here.

BREAK YIELDS $20

"We have wired Boston about her and if they want her I would say they can have her. Right now we are just waiting for the medical report on her."

The tavern break yielded only $20 and some cigarets, according to the sheriff.

In July, Marjorie won probation from Chief Justice John P. Higginsin Suffolk Superior Court when she promised to quit wearing boy's clothing.

THEFT OF $386

She had been charged with the theft of $386 from a Dorchester druggist where she had been employed for a short time. A very prety girl, she promised Judge Higgins she would get a job and repay the $386.

Only a week before her trouble in Judge Higgins' court she was brought back to Boston from McKeesport, Pa., where she was employed as an errand boy and was living at the YMCA.

She also said she once had been married to Woodrow Hilliard in Texas, in the aftermath of a war romance that soon went on the rocks.

New Bombing Stirs Alarm In Holy Land

JERUSALEM, Sept. 30 (AP)—A bomb explosion outside an Arab shop near the Jaffa Gate touched off a general alarm today in Jerusalem, still jittery from the bombing of a Haifa police station, in which 10 persons were killed and 77 were injured yesterday.

No casualties were reported from today's bombing, which police believed was intended to intimidate Arab shop owners who have broken an Arab boycott against trading with Jews.

Almost simultaneously Haifa reported the Egypt express had been derailed by a mine explosion 20 miles south of Haifa.

There were no casualties.

Three ships loaded with more than 4500 Jewish immigrants were reported nearing the Palestine coast today in an attempt to run the British blockade.

Reports of minor outbreaks of violence came meanwhile from various sections of Palestine.

Pardon Urged for Killer Of Dorchester Woman

Several friends of Meyer Goldenberg, 37, of East Boston, who is serving a life sentence at Norfolk prison colony for the stabbing murder of Sophie Robart, 30, of Wellington Hill, Dorchester, in Franklin Park, Aug. 30, 1942, appeared before the State Parole Board at a State House hearing today and testified in an effort to bring about his pardon.

SHE WASN'T USED TO HOUSE BREAKING

Next time Mrs. Stephano Terrasi, 40, of Broadway, Quincy, locks herself out of her home, she'll be patient and wait until she can get inside in normal fashion.

Today she was impatient and decided to climb through a cellar window. She got inside and climbed down onto a 275-gallon fuel oil tank, preparatory to dropping to the cellar floor.

But the tank slipped and pinned her against the wall where she was wedged firmly. Her cries attracted neighbors, who summoned police and firemen. The combined forces managed to extricate her after shoring up the tank. She was treated for body bruises by a physician.

Father Due to Claim Blue Hills Girl's Body

A griefstricken father was en route here from Boothbay Harbor, Me., today to claim the body of his daughter, the blonde girl of the Blue Hills, who was identified through efforts of the Boston Record-American as Leona Durfee, 28, a native of Boothbay Harbor who had lived in Boston, Hartford and Springfield.

George Durfee, notified that the body found five days ago in the Blue Hills woods was that of his daughter, announced she would be buried in her native town. He added she had been away during the war years working in war plants.

Identity of the victim was given by the FBI in Washington after the Record-American had sent the victim's fingerprints over the wires of International Newsphoto's Soundphoto Service.

It marked the second time in a year that positive identification in a puzzling case was made by Hearst newspapers. In the other, the Los Angeles Examiner used the same system to send to Washington the fingerprints of a murder victim that had all the West Coast baffled.

The victim was identified within minutes as Elizabeth Short, the so-called "Black Dahlia" of Medford, who was slain and dismembered in a Los Angeles parking lot.

SUSPECT SUICIDE

Meanwhile, it appeared quite likely today that Miss Durfee had taken her own life. Relatives all said she had been in ill health and had suffered a collapse as a result of her war work.

State Police have stated that there is indication of poison in the body, and Dr. Joseph Walker, state chemist, was expected today to disclose his analysis of the contents of a tonic bottle which was clutched in the dead girl's hands.

One relative, Mrs. Marguerite Carrington of Standish rd., Squantum, a sister, said that Leona had suffered a nervous breakdown about 10 months ago.

Mrs. Carrington and her husband William said they had tried on numerous occasions to get Leona to live with them, but that she preferred to make her home in Boston. They said at times she had been employed in hospitals, but worked hard during the war in munitions factories, and they believed her health had been affected as a result.

HARTFORD WAR WORKER

The last war work done by Miss Durfee, according to the records, was in 1944. On July 7 of that year she applied for a job in West Hartford, Ct., giving an address in Edwards st., Hartford, and was fingerprinted by the police.

On June 17, 1943, according to FBI records, Miss Durfee applied for a job at the Pratt & Whitney airplane engine plant in East Hartford, at which time she gave her address as Springfield, and Woodlawn st., Hartford, Ct.

The second record was obtained in February of 1943 when she applied for work at the Hartford Special Machine Co., and the third on March 8, the same year, when State Police of Connecticut took her fingerprints in connection with an application for a job with the Colt Firearms Co.

NO MARKS ON BODY

The unidentified body of the slender, blonde woman was found Sept. 26, face downward on a rock on a densely wooded slope about half a mile from the Harvard Observatory off Summit Path in the Blue Hills of Milton.

The body was found by Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Sherman of Landsdowne st., Squantum, who nearly stumbled across it while picnicking nearby with their two children.

The dead girl, police said, wore no rings or other jewelry. Near her body was a handbag of woven red and green straw, containing only nine cents, two pencils, a comb and a powder compact.

Hathaway Fined in Logan Airport Fraud

Stephen Hathaway of Lynnfield Center, contractor who was arrested in the State's probe of alleged irregularities in construction work at Logan International Airport, was fined $500 in municipal court today after he pleaded guilty to two charges of making false reports to the department of public utilities and testifying falsely before it.

The case was scheduled to come up Oct. 3, but was disposed of by an agreement between the defense and Asst. Atty. Gen. George Fingold.

Hathaway agreed to a finding of guilty on the three counts. In return, Fingold nol prossed five other charges, three of perjury and two of forgery.

The contractor admitted signing the name of a business associate, Percy J. O'Brien, to two applications in connection with trucking at the airport. He also admitted representing himself as O'Brien in an appearance before the public utilities department.

His attorney, Timothy J. Murphy, said Hathaway had his partner's authority to act for him, although procedure technically called for Hathaway to sign his own name as an applicant and to identify himself at the appearance.

2 Struck Overseas Airliners Land Here

Operations of American Overseas Airlines, struck by its 173 first pilots and co-pilots at 4 a. m., were slowly taxiing to a stop today as two of three flagships due in from Europe landed at Logan Airport en route to their ultimate destination, New York, where the planes weer to be abandoned.

A total of 23 passengers debarked from the flagship Sweden, out of London, and Reykjavik, out of Frankfurt. Among the passengers were Dr. Frank Lahey, head of the famous clinic, and his wife.

Dr. Leahy

Meanwhile, the company announced it had grounded five planes in Europe—two westward from London, one from Frankfurt, another from Stockholm and an eastbound flight that was stopped at Prestwick, Scotland. At least 69 persons, the company stated, had reservations on the cancelled flights.

4 FLIGHTS UNCERTAIN

One trans-Atlantic flight to Europe from New York was "indefinitely delayed," the company added, and four other trips scheduled for this afternoon were uncertain. The line has 17 planes in its overseas service and schedules 24 round-trip flights weekly.

The mass walkout was announced in Chicago by David L. Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots Ass'n (AFL), who said the strike did not involve pay but stemmed from what he termed "American Overseas Airlines strong-arm-or-else negotiating tactics that bluntly attempted to circumvent the Railway Labor Act."

VOTE UNANIMOUS

The strike was called, he said, on an unanimous strike vote after a complete breakdown of negotiations for a working contract, up for renewal since Dec. 1, 1945, 22 months ago. The required 30-day waiting period before the strike could be invoked ended Sept. 17, he added, but AOA pilots had exerted every effort since then to avert the walkout.

Harold R. Harris, company vice-president and general manager, said:

"The strike action by the pilots' union is illegal under the provisions of the railway labor act, which also covers the airlines."

Unaffected by the walkout is American Airlines domestic service within the U. S., according to Behncke, AOA operates separately from its parent body.

The company has thus far failed to comment on the union president's statement of the strike cause.

Dr. and Mrs. Lahey had been in London since Sept. 3. The famous surgeon and diagnostician was made an honorary member of the Royal College of Surgeons and delivered the Joll lecture on goitre.

DR. ALLEN HONORED

He revealed that a second local physician, Dr. Arthur Allen, had also been named an honorary member of the London society and had delivered the Moynihan lecture on ulcers.

"The British look surprisingly well," said Dr. Lahey, "almost as well as before the war. However, medical conditions are very difficult since every large hospital was bombed during the war and repairs are not yet complete.

"A large number of British doctors are looking longingly toward the U. S. as a land of better opportunity because they realize the English trend is toward socialized medicine."

Vandenberg Calls For Speedy Move On European Aid

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—Sen. Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan said today that in the matter of emergency aid for Europe "the immediate question is one of elemental human survival in a free society."

Vandenberg, the recognized Senate Republican spokesman on foreign policy matters, made that statement in announcing that he had called the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which he is chairman, to meet Nov. 10 in accordance with a request from President Truman.

Noting Mr. Truman's request that key Senate and House committees explore western Europe's "urgent winter needs for food and fuel," Vandenberg added:

"This proposal is submitted separately from plans dealing with long range economy recovery on a self-help basis although they have factors in common."

Mr. Truman asked yesterday that four congressional committees study a $580,000,000 fund for European winter aid before he determines whether to summon a special session of Congress.

EXPLAINS DELAY

Explaining why he had not called his committee to meet until Nov. 10, Vandenberg said the State Department "will not be ready with concrete proposals until Nov. 1."

He added that "other essential reports, including findings of congressional committees visiting Europe and also the report of the Harriman Commission, will not be available until that time."

Commerce Sec. Harriman is directing a study into the question of how much aid the United States can give Europe without injury to its own economy.

PLEDGES CO-OPERATION

With Vandenberg's call for the Senate foreign relations committee to meet, three of the four committees Mr. Truman asked to study European aid have now been summoned to convene in early November. The others are Senate appropriations and House foreign affairs.

The fourth committee is House House Appropriations. Rep. Taber (R) of New York, chairman of it, is now in Europe and is not expected back until late next month.

Leaders of both parties agreed that submitting the proposal first to the foreign affairs and appropriations committees of the Senate and House strikes them as the right approach.

Speaker of the House Martin (R.) of Massachusetts said he had suggested this course a month ago and added in an interview at Topeka, Kan.:

"The Republican Congress and its committees will most certainly co-operate."

Martin declared he believes the President is leading up to a special session call "late in November."

A high-ranking Democratic official on Capitol Hill said he expects that Congress will be reconvened around Dec. 1 unless the four committees turn thumbs down on the emergency aid.

FUNDS LIMITED

President Truman told congressional leaders at a lengthy meeting there is only enough money on hand to keep western Europe, especially Italy, France and Austria, going on a "starvation basis" of food and fuel until some time in December. There is no way to make additional funds available, he said, without action by Congress.

He said it will take another $580,000,000 to see the area through next March.

HOBBY FIRE

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—The magnifying glass which John Lydgate, 11, uses to examine his rare coin collection was blamed by Fire Chief Arthur Fawcett for a $10,000 fire at the home of William A. Lydgate, Gallup poll editor.

Fawcett said the glass fell from a third floor window, landing in a position to focus the sun's rays on dry cedar shingles, which caught fire.

Siamese Princess to Wed Jap Commoner, Dad of 2

By DUANE HENNESSY

TOKYO, Sept. 30 (AP)—A pretty Siamese princess, Mary Visakah Svasta, who has come to Tokyo to marry the Japanese commoner she met during the war, said today she picked him as her bridegroom because she couldn't find a Siamese to suit her.

Princess Mary, who speaks perfect English, said she would renounce her title when she marries Shinji Utagawa, employe of a Japanese trading company at Catholic Sofia University, on Oct. 15. He was adviser to the puppet Siamese government during the war. He said he doubted if they would live in Japan, as he aspires to a diplomatic career abroad.

Clad in a simple seersucker house dress, the princess was holding her future husband's two small children and reading them nursery rhymes. She is living in Utagawa's home, chaperoned by Miss Genevieve Caulfield, for many years a social worker in Asia.

It was through her that the princess and her fiance met.

Miss Caulfield was the foster mother of Utagawa's wife, who died in childbirth five years ago when the twins, a boy and a girl, were born in Siam. The children, Nobuyuki and Haruko, always speak English and prefer to be called Joseph and Mary.

"Have you ever heard of a girl named Joan Caulfield? She's my niece," said Miss Caulfield.

She seemed surprised to learn that Joan was a rising movie star in Hollywood.

Throughout the interview, 5-year-old Joseph kept eyeing the interviewer's shoulder bands, which read: "U. S. correspondent."

"Every night," Joseph remarked clearly, "I've been praying to the Lord for some epaulets, and I don't think God will fail me."

Neither did the correspondent. Joseph is now wearing both shoulder bands.

PASTOR AWAITS PRISON

Mrs. F. D. Bids Vishinsky to Radio Debate

By DOROTHY DOAN

FLUSHING MEADOWS, N. Y., Sept. 30 (INS)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has invited Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky to debate with her his charge that America is "warmongering for a third world war."

This debate would be on a coast-to-coast radio broadcast next Sunday afternoon.

Variety, national theatrical publication, will announce tomorrow that Mrs. Roosevelt, American delegate to the United Nations, has been signed by the American Broadcasting Co. for a series of Sunday afternoon broadcasts, 12:30 to 1 p. m., for the duration of the General Assembly.

Mrs. Roosevelt will act as moderator of the series and has invited Vishinsky and Stanovic Simic, chief of the Yugoslav delegation to appear on the first broadcast.

She has titled the broadcast "Freedom of Information and the Warmongering Charges."

Whether the Russian and his Yugoslav colleague will accept the challenge is not known.

Twice—once before the Assembly, again at an unprecedented news conference—Vishinsky attacked John Foster Dulles, member of the American delegation; American newspapers and radio and assorted citizens for their criticism of Soviet policy.

Mrs. Roosevelt, anxious to carry the United Nations to America's "grass roots," plans to invite two UN delegates to appear on each broadcast.

Vishinsky was not immediately available for comment today.

Marilyn Swift Back From Rome

Marilyn Swift

Representatives of 55 nations were present at the conference.

Highlight of Miss Swift's trip was a special 20-minute audience with Pope Pius at Castle Gondolfo, summer residence of the Holy Father, on Sept. 10.

After the Congress sessions in Rome, Miss Swift and Miss Anne Sarachon Hooley, executive head of the Women's Division of the National Catholic Community Service in Washington, visited Florence and Paris before sailing from Cherbourg.

Durolph Ricardi, 31, of Rangely rd., Arlington, driver of the truck, reported to police he had just started on a green light when the girl ran out from the sidewalk into the truck.

He rushed her to the Symes Arlington Hospital where she was pronounced dead.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren J. Flynn.

Divorcee or Flier's Widow? Court Weighs Estate Claim

Decision as to whether Mrs. Fay Sherman, 28, Essex st., Chelsea, ex-WAC mother of a 2-year-old daughter, is a widow or a divorcee was reserved today by Probate Judge Robert G. Wilson, Jr., as he took under advisement her petition to be appointed administratrix of the estate of her husband, Air Forces Lt. Edward H. Sherman, presumed dead in a bombing raid over Germany.

Also taken under advisement was was the cross-petition of Samuel H. Sherman, Crawford st., Roxbury, father of the flyer who seeks to have set aside his daughter-in-law's revocation of a divorce from his son, obtained three months before the bombing raid.

The revocation was granted by Probate Judge Frederick J. Dillon in July, 1946, a year after the divorce had become absolute, on the grounds that the husband was dead before the decree was final. The bombing raid in which Lt. Sherman apparently went to his death in a flaming B-17 took place April 8, 1945.

RIGHT TO CHANGE MIND

In fighting her petition, the father contended the War Department's presumption of death is no certainty his son is not still alive. The father's attorney argued that appointment of young Mrs. Sherman as administratrix would "give her a status to which she is not entitled, morally or otherwise."

Said Judge Wilson:

"The law is with the lady and the equity is with the family. It is very obvious that the lady didn't want the man when he was alive, but she is entitled to change her mind. That is her privilege.

"I am not surprised at the attitude of the man's family."

FLYING BUDDY TESTIFIES

From the stand Mrs. Sherman merely identified a certificate witnessing her marriage to young Sherman in April, 1945, and another testifying to the birth of her daughter.

In previous testimony she denied her interest in proving whether or not her husband lived was more zealous because she would receive government gratuities as the widow of a service man.

Lt. Stanley Wechsler, N. Y., a crew member who escaped from the flaming bomber with two others, testified the last he heard from Sherman was the latter's voice over the plane's communication system.

Vet's Fraulein Held Here for Health Check

Young Ernest Couture, an ex-corporal who had turned to poultry farming in Andover after his discharge from the Army, had pictured the scene somewhat differently from the finish put on it today by immigration officials.

He was at Logan Airport, all right, and the plane was coming in. Lucky he was, too, because it was one of the American Overseas Airline flights that was already en route to the U. S. when its pilots struck.

Finally, the door swung open and there from Germany was Hildegard Palubitzki, 27, and in her arms little Barbara, 8 months old.

This was it. In a moment, he'd have Hildegard in his arms and they could get down to their wedding plans.

But the plans will have to wait. And so will young Couture. For from customs, which Hildegard cleared without a hitch she was taken in hand by immigration officials.

They weren't quite sure of Hildegard's health, they said so it was best that she be taken to the Merchant Marine Hospital, Brighton, for a checkup.

Couture waited at the barrier. They had forgotten to tell him about their plans for Hildegard.

DeBartolo Released From Army Prison

Pvt. Michael DeBartolo, 25, of Standard st., Dorchester, who was freed from a 10-year sentence at hard labor imposed for wartime desertion in Italy, was released from confinement at Greenhaven Barracks, New York, today and assigned to First Army Headquarters at Governor's Island.

The Dorchester GI immediately telephoned his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph DeBartolo, who packed their bags and started for Governor's Island in an automobile. They said if they reached there too late to see him tonight they would see him as early as possible tomorrow.

Army sources" indicated he might be discharged from the service within hours, depending on the term of his enlistment.

The self-described amnesia victim, whose court martial defense had been that he didn't know how he happened to be separated from his outfit, is expected to collect several thousand dollars in back pay and back terminal leave.

DeBartolo, whose 10-year team represented a commuted life sentence, was scheduled for release yesterday. The Army notified one of his attorneys, former Lt.-Gov. Francis Kelly, that Washington was wiring Greenhaven yesterday to release him.

This morning officers at Greenhaven said they had received no word up to then. The War Dept. followed with a statement the release would have to be processed through the Mediterranean theater, then sent the wire for release from confinement and transfer to Governor's Island.

Doctor Fired Him, Dog Trainer Says

Irving A. Tebo of Gloucester, former trainer of racing greyhounds for Dr. Charles G. Hall, Malden veterinarian, charged today, in his $500 contract action against the doctor, that he was "fired" for mixing in track politics. Hearing opened before Judge Joseph E. Donovan in municipal court.

Tebo claimed he had an oral contract calling for $35 weekly, 5 per cent of purses won by the doctor's dogs, and payment of his room rent while he was racing the greyhounds in Florida from January through April last year.

He said he was "fired" by telephone after he became chairman of an organization of dog owners and trainers which succeeded in obtaining increased purses from the Florida track.

Dr. Hall testified he had agreed to pay Tebo $35 weekly and the 5 per cent of the purses, but no more.

The case is continuing.

Luckman Demands 2-Party Backing

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (INS)—Charles Luckman, chairman of the Citizens' Committee on Food Conservation, disclosed he will confer later today with Republican leaders to obtain 100 per cent backing of President Truman's food program.

Luckman made his announcement on leaving the White House after a long conference with Administration leaders. He added:

"We will not embark upon any food program unless it has the full backing of both parties and all Americans."

At a news conference tomorrow Luckman is to outline the proposals for putting into effect the food conservation program.

K. of C. Official Hurley Dies

Court Stays One-Cent Boost in Price of Milk

The state milk control board was enjoined in superior court today from putting into effect the one-cent increase in milk which it had authorized to become effective tomorrow.

Dealers had planned to charge 22 cents a quart for doorstep deliveries in 37 cities and towns of metropolitan Boston, as well as in the Lowell-Lawrence and Fall River areas, an all-time high in Massachusetts.

Judge Vincent Brogna issued the restraining order upon a petition by the Massachusetts Restaurant Ass'n, which asserts the state board has no legal authority to establish prices for milk.

The order is to prevail pending a hearing on the milk board's powers.

Princess Bess Jittery Godmother

WORPLESDON, Eng., Sept. 30 (AP)—Princess Elizabeth held a small baby today and said later she "was nervous, terribly afraid of dropping" the child.

The princess, accompanied by her fiance, Lt. Philip Mountbatten, served as godmother in the Worplesdon village church for the christening of the infant daughter of the Hon. Mrs. Andrew Elphinstone, one of her ladies in waiting.

She posed afterward for photographers at the Elphinstone home, holding the baby, Rosemary Elizabeth. The "Elizabeth" is for her.

Argentina, Canada on UN Council

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—Argentina and Canada were elected by the United Nations Assembly today to sit on the Security Council for two-year terms, but the contest for a third seat was indecisive on the first ballot.

A last minute switch eliminated Czechoslokavia from the running and left the Soviet Ukraine and India competing in a second ballot runoff.

Earlier in the day, Czechoslovakia was reported to have had the support of both the United States and Russia, as well as the 20 Latin American republics. However, Soviet delegate Gromyko was reported to have engineered a shift of the Latin Americans to the Ukraine.

Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovak foreign minister, had waged a persistent behind-the-scenes campaign to keep his country off the council, where it would have been in the middle of the east-west conflict.

In this spot previously Poland has been the consistent voting partner of Russia. The tenure of Poland and two others on the council expires Dec. 31.

On the first ballot Canada received 41 votes and Argentina 41—three more than the required two-thirds vote. No other country received the necessary majority.

Shipyard Leaders Pass Picket-Line

A group of shipyard workers, their status as company men or potential union members still undecided today passed peacefully through a picket line at the Simpson Drydocks, Marginal st., East Boston, subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Co., under the watchful eyes of 20 patrolmen headed by Police Capt. William Britt.

Fred Varone, business agent for CIO Local 5, Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, scored police for detailing 20 men to stand by in the face of 20 pickets. Britt, however, said the number of pickets was closer to 40.

The workers pasisng through the picket line are so-called leaders, key men on jobs, whose status awaits a decision from the National abor Relations Board which has said the matter would probably be decide dby the courts.

State Liquor Vote Barred by Errors

Atty. Gen. Clarence A. Barnes declared today that a proposed initiative petition seeking establishment of State-operated liquor stores and agencies was "unintelligible" because of many missing or misspelled words and was not in proper form.

In answers filed in Suffolk Superior Court to demands for his reasons in refusing to certify the petition for presentation to the voters, Barnes declared the proposal failed to provide for control of the proposed administrative board by the governor, council or any State Department.

He also cited numerous sections of the proposal in which words were omitted, misspelled or so used as to make the sections completely unintelligible and "making no sense." He cited similar reasons for several other petitions which he had refused to certify for the ballot.

Boeing Aircraft Making 2 New Bombers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—Boeing Aircraft disclosed today it is developing a new heavy bomber, the XB-52, along with an advanced model of the B-50, latest in propeller bombers.

Neither of these planes was described, but the XB-52 is believed to be an effort to apply gas turbine-powered propellers to heavy aircraft.

Wallace Accepts Commie Backing, Rips Old Parties

Henry Wallace, here on a speaking tour, rapped the Republicans today as "a war party," included the Democrats by charging the "Truman Doctrine" was moving the country toward war, and said he would accept the Communist support pledged him recently by William Z. Foster, head of the Reds in this country.

At the same time he continued to spar on the question of his presidential aspirations, saying:

"It is too early to say I am a candidate."

Wallace recommended President Truman and Stalin should meet in Berlin to compose differences, adding, "many of these are merely differences of language."

He recommended formation of "peace" clubs on college campuses when spokesmen for college magazines asked him what they could do to further his ideas.

One of his backers, former Atty. Gen. Robert Kenney of California, interposed during the interview:

"Mr. Wallace is already considered a Democratic candidate for President in California and Oregon and the delegates from those states will go into the convention pledged to him."

Wallace will speak at the Arena tonight under auspices of the Massachusetts Progressive Citizens' Ass'n and at Soldiers' Field, Brighton, tomorrow night, when he will be sponsored by Harvard chapters of the American Veterans Committee.

Probe Maine Fire Fatal to 3 Children

WINSLOW, Me., Sept. 30—Fire and police officials today sought the cause of a fire which took the lives of three young brothers shortly after they had gone to bed here in their cottage home.

The victims were Donald, 6; Paul, 4, and Terry Stuart, 2, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stuart.

The latter had put their youngsters to bed and gone a short distance away to the home of a neighbor, Ronald Reynolds, for whom Stuart was making some house repairs.

Even as the couple reached the Reynolds home they were attracted by flames roaring from the kitchen of their home. Stuart and Reynolds ran to the blazing cottage but were unable to save the children.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

OSTENSIBLY it looks as though the United States is winning all the tactical victories at the United Nations. Actually, a position of neutrality is developing there which may be of tremendous importance to this country. The questions arise:

Does the United States have any allies? Has our "diplomacy of the pay-off" left us realistically isolated? In the event of a war, who in Europe or Asia would support us as we have twice in this generation supported and saved nations in Europe and Asia?

Take, for instance, China. This country has been saving China from partition and destruction since John Hay was Secretary of State.

Beginning with the "open door policy" in 1899, through our protection of China during the Boxer Rebellion, through the imposition of the 21 demands by Japan in 1915, through our rejection of the Paris peace treaty because of the Shantung clauses, through the Washington conference and the nine-power treaty, through the Stimson doctrine in 1931 to our actual engagement in war with Japan this country has consistently supported whatever government in China possessed authority.

Besides, we spent huge sums for the welfare of the Chinese people in educational, health and religious missionary work. We have been consistent and loyal friends of China for a century. In fact, I am sure that it can be substantiated that except for the racial issue on the Pacific Coast, this country never had a quarrel with Japan that did not originate over China.

SO NOW there is talk among the Chinese about being neutral between the United States and Soviet Russia. Sun Fo, who is always a weathercock, publicly states that unless the United States comes across with money—more, more money—China might find it advisable to tie in with Soviet Russia.

Sun Fo is not the brightest of men and he usually says what someone wants him to say. But who is the someone in this case?

For instance, why did China abstain from voting on the question of discussing the Italian treaty? That is a fundamental question of American policy.

Now, what about the Arabs? They never would have amounted to anything were it not that Mr. Roosevelt supported the Arab League, made cash gifts to Ibn Saud, financed a vast oil enterprise with American dollars that made the Arabs richer than they were in the days of Haroun al-Raschid in the glamorous court at Baghdad.

So the Arabs are neutral between the United States and Soviet Russia. They are, of course, bargaining over Palestine, or are we bargaining over oil? The Arabs also abstained from voting on the basic issues in the United Nations.

IT WOULD BE UNSOUND to jump to conclusions from these abstentions and I am not jumping to conclusions. In fact, I am going slowly, but suspiciously—very suspiciously.

I would like to know—and every American should know—where we stand. Who are our friends? Do we have allies? What has been the value of the "good neighbor policy?"

What has been the value of Lend-Lease, of UNRRA, of all the help we have given nations in winning friendships? Do we only have friends as long as we pay for friendship?

THESE ARE QUESTIONS that require analysis and understanding. Shall it come to be that the only peoples in all the world that will stand by America are the Japanese whom MacArthur won for us, and perhaps some of the countries on the American continent who are sentimental over the traditions of the Monroe Doctrine?

Is this too gloomy a picture of our diplomatic defeat? Perhaps. I do not claim for it more than a hypothesis, but the decencies have disappeared and the proletarian statesman who govern the world seem capable of unimaginable vulgarities, such as the Vishinsky speech, Tito's threats, or even Bevin's suggestion about distributing the "Fort Knox gold."

Too many of them are in love with their own voices over the radio. Too many of them have been reared in the street-fighting and back-stabbing of revolutionary movements. We are not doing business with nice people—and eternal vigilance is the price of national existence.

Adlow Warns Police Losing Public Respect

POLAND SPRINGS, Me., Sept. 30—Modern laws and court procedure have combined to lower police prestige and the only way it can be restored is through discreet enforcement of the law and the cautious exercise of the power of arrest."

This warning was sounded today by Associate Justice Elijah Adlow of Boston Municipal Court in an address to the 22d annual conference of the New England Council of Chiefs of Police.

Judge Adlow pointed out that there was a time when a man might go through life without colliding with the law even once but added that modern man finds himself involved in a hopeless jumble of statutes, ordinances and regulations. He said:

"The only way he can avoid entanglement with the law is to remove himself from society. Man's potential as a law breaker has increased tremendously in a world that seeks to regulate modern society by constantly passing new laws.

CREATES BITTERNESS

"The immediate result of all this has been that a large portion of the men and women obliged to appear in our criminal courts have no resemblance whatever to the types for which our criminal courts were built or designed to handle.

"Not a few of these good people emerge from the experience with bitterness toward the police who brought them in there. Consider the vast numbers summoned into the criminal courts every year for violating speeding or parking laws. Can any police official view this spectacle and delude himself that police prestige is being enhanced by the process?

"But the fault is not identified with traffic cases alone. It is more general than that. Altogether too many people are being arrested for all sorts of things every day in the week and are being herded into our courts.

ANTI-SOCIAL TREND

"The experience is a disturbing one. It tends to make people anti-social. Remember that a sound administration of justice requires the backing of a strong and healthy public opinion. There is a marked tendency for all who have appeared in court to regard one another as companions in misery.

"The remedy for all this lies in discreet enforcement of the law. The power of arrest should be exercised cautiously. The policeman who brings in everyone who violates the law, no matter how insignificant, does more harm than good to the cause of law enforcement.

SNAIL SERVICE

Rome, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP)—A postcard mailed in Boston 42 years ago was delivered here to the widow of the addressee, Dr. William B. Reid.

The worn and yellowed card, with a McKinley stamp, had been caught in a hotel chute.

It bore this message from the late Dr. C. C. Reid to his nephew:

"I arrived here at nine last night. We sail at 10 this morning on the Adm. Dewey."

Hub Rabbi in New Plea to Free Son

Another direct appeal to the French government for the release of Rabbi D. Korff, held in Paris for an alleged plot to bomb London with leaflets and homemade explosives, was made today by his father, Grand Rabbi Jocob I. Korff, leader of the Boston orthodox rabbinate.

A spokesman for the father said the young rabbi is known to be in a seriously weakened condition as he entered the 11th day of a hunger strike in protest against his detention. Two direct messages to the State Department, seeking intercession, have remained unanswered.

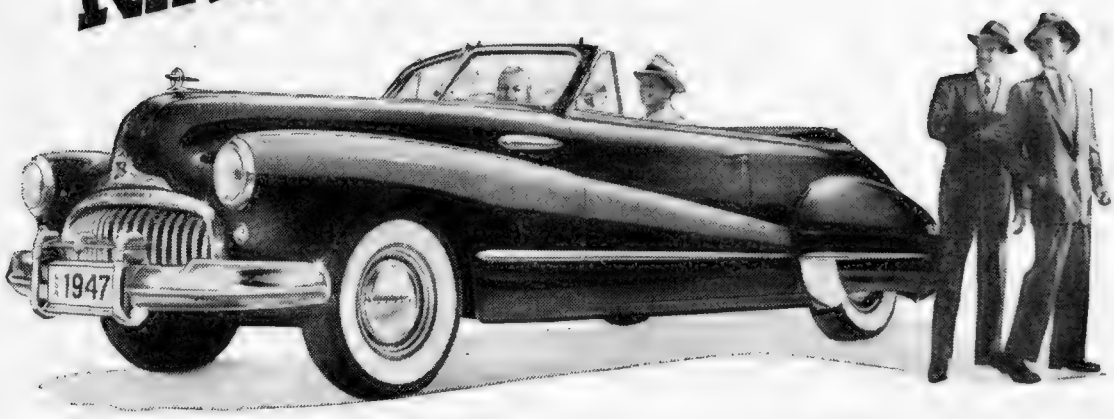
KING FOR TODAY



– and Tomorrow and Tomorrow

WHAT'S it like – parked here behind the wheel of this gorgeous style-pacer, with the sun smiling down, the road ribboning by, the whole world passing in pleasant review?

Well –

Maybe you've sat on a headland over the sea where you're one with the sky and the clouds and the breeze. There's a lot of that when you travel in this Buick.

Or maybe you've known the thrill of lifting a plane off the ground, and felt your spirits soar to the surge of singing power perfectly at your command.

There's much of that, too, in the eager answer of the eight big Fireball cylinders under your Buick's bonnet.

Maybe you've cruised quietly through calm waters, relaxing to the lift and swell of a truly buoyant ride – there's more than a touch of that in the way this beauty's all-coil springing floats you over the stretching miles.

There is mastery here of time and of distance. There's the steadiness of ample roadweight, and the pleasant knowledge that wherever you go you are carrying the banner of tomorrow's automobile styling.

There's a big bang in the extra conveniences you enjoy here – a front seat that adjusts itself to your comfort at a finger-touch, door windows that roll up and down at a button's command, a top that rises against changing weather at your pressure on a handy control.

Here are all the pleasures of motoring in measure to make you king for today and a thousand tomorrows – so why wait longer to get your name in for one?

Take our tip that when your Buick Convertible arrives it will be much, much more than the most you expect – and get a firm order in, whether or not you have a car to trade.

Engineer Tells Of U.S. Gain in Jet Propulsion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP)—The engineering chief for the nation's major builder of jet engines said today the United States has "at least caught up with and in some ways is ahead" of the British in jet propulsion.

This view was expressed to the President's air policy commission by R. M. Hazen, engineering director for the Allison division of General Motors Corp. Allison buils a large share of the turbo-jet engines now in use.

Hazen said the United States leads in building and using axial flow compressors—a type in which the air is shoved straight back by a series of blades, as compared with the centrifugal type in which air is comprised by throwing it off the ends of the blades—and in the use of water injection for extra thrust.

But, he added, the British gas turbine flight tests were "on a lavish scale compared with this country." Hazen urged greater investment of funds and more emphasis in flight tests here, along with support of experiments to adapt gas turbines to commercial planes.

He predicted that within five years all new large aircraft will be powered by turbine engines, the military using turbo-jets (such as the P-80 shooting star) for short and medium ranges and turbo-prop (a gas turbine driving a propeller) for long range planes.

4 Missing Boys Found, Accused of 2 Breaks

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 30—Four Gloucester boys, objects of wide search by their families and friends since yesterday, when they failed to attend an afternoon school session, were found today after they had broken into homes in Hamilton and Essex.

Three of the boys were picked up in Hamilton after entering an estate there. The fourth was picked up by Essex police after he allegedly had broken into an amusement park.

FRENZIED FINANCE

SHANGHAI, Sept. 30 (AP)—The bouncing check total in the Shanghai Clearing House reached a new weekly high of 243,000,000,000 yuan ($4,860,000) last week.

The clearing house reported that since Chinese law does not prohibit the issuance of bad checks, the practice has been seized upon by business men who use the checks as a delayed payment plan to save the huge interest being charged on short-term loans.

Pound Baby Dies After 77 Hours

OWATONNA, Minn., Sept. 30 (AP)—Sara Jane Gray, "pound baby," died 77 hours after her birth, physician-uncle reported.

The infant was born three months prematurely to Mrs. Warren Gray, 33, wife of a Waseca, Minn., athletic coach. Sara Jane, whose head was about the size of an orange, perished of respiratory failure, Dr. Lyle V. Berghs, Mrs. Gray's brotner, said.

The doctor said the baby weighed just about a pound at birth.

2 Girls, Man Hiker Beat, Rob Autoist

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 30—Standing beside a disabled auto in Columbus ave., two girls and a man signaled for aid early today. George Cadieux, 42, of Beaver st., a dental laboratory owner, obliged when the trio asked for a ride to their West Springfield homes.

Shortly afterward Cadieux was brutally beaten, robbed of $45, his watch, diamond ring and new car and left bleeding and helpless by the roadside in a heavily wooded area. He walked a mile to the nearest home to telephone police who took him to Mercy Hospital for treatment for head and face lacerations.

Police broadcast an alarm for the man and two girls wanted for assault, robbery and larceny of a car. Cadieux reported one girl grabbed the car wheel and turned off the ignition while the other girl and the man beat him.

East Boston Man Jailed For Theft of Nylons

Richard D. Hunt, 22, of Marion st., East Boston, found his one-man corner on nylons stopped cold in municipal court today when he was sentenced to two months in jail for stealing 162 pairs valued at $1.35 each.

Det. George J. Lang found Hunt yesterday at Washington and Avery sts. carrying a carton with a department store label. Under questioning Hunt confessed climbing to the fourth floor stock room of the store and scaling a 10-foot wall into a bin where the nylons were kept. Judge Joseph T. Zottoli added another month when he found Hunt had violated a recent probation for drunkenness.

BORN BRANDED

THE room is cold. Outside, the wind howls and beats upon the wooden walls of the barrack. And here, in this room without heat, in this camp without hope, a child is born.

The jubilation is overshadowed by fear.

For as surely as if a hot iron were stamped into its flesh, the child is born branded.

The brand is D P. That stands for Displaced Person.

In this case, it stands for a new-born child whose parents have survived the hideous scourge of Hitlerism. The years in Belsen, Buchenwald, Dachau, Oswiecim. The gas chambers and the mass graves. The cold. The hunger. The sickness.

They have come out of the long night of terror, in which six million of their people were murdered. With your help they have survived. They still live.

What happens to them now?

In the cold room of the D P camp, the father looks upon the face of his new-born child. And the father prays . . .

"Dear God, let me work that I may build a future for my son.

"Dear God, lead me to a land that is home, to a piece of earth under the skies of freedom, where my son may grow without hatred and live without fear.

• • •

"Dear God, hold us together."

Out of the camps of Europe comes a prayer for deliverance . . . an appeal to the conscience of the American people.

In this American land with its tradition of liberty and justice for all — shall that prayer for help go unheard, unanswered?

Look deep into your heart. You'll find the answer there. When you are asked to give, give generously . . . give sacrificially.

This is a year of greater need, because . . .

1. UNRRA's liquidation has placed greater burdens on the agencies of the United Jewish Appeal.
2. The Jewish population of the D P camps has trebled in one year . . from 85,000 at the beginning of 1946 to 250,000 in 1947.
3. Rehabilitation efforts must be expanded to help hundreds of thousands in Hungary, Rumania, Poland and other countries.
4. Medical care and rehabilitation programs must be provided for the 170,000 surviving Jewish children, 26,000 of whom are in D P camps.
5. Many thousands of Jews must leave Europe because they have no future there. Palestine must be built up and developed with U.J.A. funds, to provide for those who are coming into Palestine now and for those who will arrive in the future.
6. Many services, including migration, retaining, adjustment and special aid for child refugees must be provided for displaced Jews who find a haven in the United States.

New Haven Trainmen Set For Strike Vote

With a prediction that a strike will be called, strike ballots were readied today for 5000 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in the employ of the recently reorganized New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R.

The brotherhood's general chairman, J. J. Hammill, predicted that 90 per cent of the membership "would vote strike" soon after decision was reached at New Haven to poll the membership.

Members attending the New Haven meeting included the Brotherhood's general committee, President J. Lavin and union representatives from Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island, states which would be critically affected by a walkout.

Hammill said the conference was held with the approval of National President A. F. Whitney, stemming from the New Haven's refusal to abide by decisions of the National Adjustment Board on claims dating back to 1937 and involving more than $300,000.

The claims, Hammill said, had been decided in favor of employes but the road had declined to pay up.

Hammill said it would take about two weeks to get the ballots ready and distribute them.

Communism Crowding Out Religion, Methodists Told

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 30—Russian Communism probably is Christianity's most formidable competitor in the modern world, Rev. Ralph E. Diffendorfer, of New York, declared today in an address before the seventh session of the nine-day World-Wide Methodist Conference.

"Europe can no longer be regarded as Christian," he said, "and now it is threatened—not in a few years, perhaps, but certainly in a few generations—with a civilization that will be neither Christian, humanitarian nor democratic in any western sense.

"Methodist training schools and universities overseas scarcely have touched on how to meet modern secularism, the demands of totalitarian regimes and the philosophies of nihilism and Communism."

Dr. Channing Tobias, of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, proposed an interfaith meeting to consider feeding the hungry of the whole world.

He recommended that the parley of Protestants, Jews, Catholics, Mohammedans, Buddhists and Hindus work "not in the spirit of charity, but of sharing, and not according to selective processes by which friends would be favored and enemies denied."

"Such a meeting would put heart and hope into a bewildered world," he declared.

THE 'FREEDOM TRAIN'

THE ARRIVAL of the "Freedom Train" in New England is an event which millions of our people will long remember.

To see the precious documents which the train is carrying under the supervision of the American Heritage Foundation and the sponsorship of the Hearst newspapers is to gain a new appreciation of our country's history and increased admiration for the great men who wrote it with heroic deeds.

Thanks to Attorney General Tom C. Clark and other distinguished leaders who are responsible for the nationwide tour of the documents so intimately related to the rights and freedoms that all Americans enjoy, it will be possible for us all to go back over the years to the time of the Declaration of Independence and the adoption of the United States Constitution and to find increased reason for desiring to preserve the free way of life that is both a heritage and a responsibility.

The "Freedom Train" will be particularly impressive and instructive to young people who will gain a more personal and intimate understanding of patriotic duty in becoming familiar with the immortal symbols and instruments of the fundamental laws under which they live.

MEN OF FAITH

BOSTON IS pleased and uniquely privileged to be the convention city of the nation's Holy Name Societies, and all officials should co-operate fully with Archbishop Cushing in his endeavor to make the five-day program one of unsurpassed excellence.

In this period of world strife, with godlessness supplanting goodness and materialism too often taking precedence over the Cross, it is important and inspiring to find men from all walks of life coming from afar to proclaim their faith in God and to rededicate themselves and their familes to Him.

There is strength for all Americans in the knowledge that such men will never compromise with Communism or desert their church and country.

Like their forefathers who suffered persecution in many lands, they will keep their religious beliefs, even at the cost of their lives; and they will pass them on, undefiled, to their sons and daughters.

One cannot but wish that it were possible to hold similar Holy Name Society conventions in Russia, Bulgaria and wherever else the Hammer and Sickle mocks Christ and His teachings.

That will be one of the prayers of the convention; and to it, Americans of all creeds and denominations will utter a very sincere and hopeful Amen.

GOOD EXAMPLE

THE FARMERS of New Hampshire who have petitioned the Federal Power Commission for the right to use the idle flood control dam on the Blackwater River are living up to the best New England traditions.

Like their ancestors who built our cities and great manufacturing centers, these sensible men refuse to tolerate waste and extravagance.

The Blackwater River dam cost the taxpayers more than a million and a half dollars.

Its main purpose is the storing of water in the event of a widespread inundation.

But, between floods—which are sometimes as long as twenty years apart—it is capable of producing large volumes of electricity much more cheaply and certainly more conveniently than either coal or petroleum which must be brought to New England by rail or boat from distant places.

Farmers need abundant electricity to survive competition and to provide the food that is so urgently essential today, not only in our own country but throughout a large part of the world.

The Blackwater River dam is one of the many similar projects which the United States Army engineers blue-printed for New England after the 1936 flood.

On the Side

You said I was your heart,
Your soul and treasure;
You sighed and sighed,
Burning in flames beyond all measure.
Then another you did meet,
Your heart was soon enchained,
Full soon he had my place obtained
Soon came a third your love to win,
We first two lovers were out and he was in
Adieu, love, adieu love, untrue love.
Your mind is light
And soon lost for new love.
— DRYER.

THIS IS ONE of the innumerable 18th century poems written by men given the brush-off. It would appear in those days the women really kicked the men's hearts around. Incidentally, the way things are going now, it seems history may repeat itself. The newspapers are jammed with sad tales of deceived and deserted men.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: That popular torch song for males "I Surrender, Dear" is still one of the best sellers among Bing Crosby records. Bing first sang this ditty when a member of Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys. Around 1928 I believe. . . . Add clever slogans, that of a Manhattan restaurant and cafe: "Cocktails—with value in every drop." I don't go much for cocktails, but I would like to know where you can get highballs with "value in every drop." Most highballs now retailed are so weak that you have to consume at least three before you feel as if you had one drink. Fellows who were ordering "doubles" are now ordering "triples" in a desperate effort to get a drink with some strength in it.

Bing Crosby

"AMERICA'S OLDEST Private School" is the title of an article by Henry F. Pringle about Phillips-Andover Academy, Andover, Mass. It is interesting, but Henry had totally ignored the remarkable and glorious athletic history of this great school. At one time Andover teams were so strong they had only one prep school on their schedules, Phillips-Exeter. All the other teams were college outfits. Pringle stresses the fact that Andover is not "a rich man's school." He certainly is right about that. When I left my home in South Brooklyn to join the student body at Phillips-Andover all I had was a $5 bill and a pass on the Joy Line to Boston. My father was working in the shipping department of a wholesale dry goods firm at the time and was not overburdened with coin of the realm. But I had no trouble at all working my way at Andover.

SOMETHING NEW: Now some thoughtful man, with a view toward making life easier for women, has invented a gadget that makes it possible for a woman to iron a shirt in 4½ minutes. And she can do it sitting down. So from now on, there is no reason why you shouldn't have two clean shirts every day. The most enjoyable clean shirt is the one you put on for dinner after coming home for a hard day's work. Incidentally, I have always considered opening a drawer and seeing it full of clean shirts, sox and what not to be one of the minor thrills of life.

ASKING: Queries from clients. Q.—Was Mrs. O. O. McIntyre's first name Mabel or Maybelle? A—Mrs. McIntyre's maiden name was Maybelle Hope Small. Q—Can you name the first Technicolor film, or are you baffled? A—Well, I was baffled but I looked it up. It was made in 1917 and titled "The Gulf Between." It featured Niles Welch and Grace D'Armand. Q—After hearing the song "My Alice Blue Gown" on the air the other night I stated the color "alice blue" was originated in honor of Alice Roosevelt, daughter of Teddy. Was I right? A—Exactly right. It was originated on the occasion of Alice's marriage to Nicholas Longworth of Cincinnati. That was in 1906.

CONVENTIONS: The convention season in hotels is still going very strong. After one convention has left there is hardly time to fumigate the rooms, clear out the whisky bottles, sweep up the cigar stubs and lipstick stained cigaret butts before another group of wild-eyed celebrants arrives. Why do men have to run so wild at conventions? That's a question often asked by harassed fellow hotel guests. I can't answer that. Maybe it is because so many lead such sheltered and uninteresting lives at home. Hotel employes do not view the coming of a convention with pleasure. Money is not exactly showered about on such occasions. I know of a hotel maid who took care of three rooms occupied by six men at a three-day convention. They kicked up a terrible mess. The poor maid nearly broke her back cleaning up. And when these six men left they didn't tip the poor girl as much as a single dime.

"No, darling, my gray, striped suit does NOT have two pairs of trousers—why do you ask?"

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1947, by King Features Syndicate

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—The journalism of Broadway, Hollywood and the Miamis is a strange auxiliary of the new amusement industry. It consists largely of gossip done with a juvenile affectation of professional theatrical slang.

Westbrook Pegler

The gossip favors pretty adulteries, pregnancies and infelicities, but is heavily salted with personal matter intended to advertise and increase the earnings of performers and the producers.

All of it is gratuitous and arbitrary personal opinion and disputable. It has advertising value and could command an under-the-counter price beyond the dreams of the old-time we-boys of journalism who sold little puffs for ten, five or two.

We read the honest or sly—we don't know which—boast of a night club and underworld journalist, that his hysterical review of the show at a night club had made it necessary to fetch out the plush rope the next night.

A merchant with a legitimate bargain to offer in suits, food or furniture is asked to do business with the advertising department on the usual terms. He is an honest and law-abiding fellow with roots in the community.

The night club keeper of record in many cases is a dubious personality himself, and often the front for gangsters.

LAST WINTER these essays discussed the association of George Raft with Leo Durocher, then manager of the Dodgers, and Bugsy Siegel and Owen Madden.

Later, for reasons unknown, Durocher was suspended for one year from baseball.

The reaction of some journalists, especially in the world and the underworld of entertainment, was puzzling. Many of them avoided a subject which they should have tackled themselves a long time ago.

It was on their beat and practically all of them had been posing as the cognoscenti and the generous but incorruptible guardians of the God-given freedoms of mankind.

Often, especially by radio on Sundays, they preach politics and a queer form of lace-curtain snobbery called "tolerance."

Others violently defended Raft but denied nothing. Their incomes are fantastic.

HAVING OCCASION about then to communicate with Jimmy Fidler of Hollywood, 28, Cal., I asked him how he explained this attitude.

Mr. Fidler said that those colleagues on his beat who had scolded me were "Raft's pals and he has been co-operative with the press for years."

He did not tell me what that meant, that "co-operative with the press." But Raft was getting about $300,000 a year himself, and sweet advertising was worth a lot of his high-bracket income. His promoters also would have a business motive here.

Mr. Fidler said that another reason for this odd response to a news story exploded by a stranger on their own beat was that "some few movie columnists may resent what they regard as an 'intrusion' in their own sacred field of endeavor."

I BORE as modestly as I could this and even more ardent compliments from Mr. Fidler. So I was unstrung only recently to read that my zeal was excessive in presenting unpublished truths about Sinatra.

There had been excessive zeal in the other direction concerning Sinatra for several years, and Mr. Fidler's colleagues had created a fictitious character.

That character was now threatening to use his popularity to disrupt political meetings and probably to cause riots and their consequences in the campaign of 1948.

In such case it were a public service to rewrite that public character according to the provable facts of his conduct and associations.

MR. FIDLER THEN extolled one Ed Sullivan, who had interposed his own brave body to protect Sinatra from my unfeeling revelations.

"It is a fact," Mr. Fidler told the unseen audience of the radio, "that I presented him (Sullivan) with one of my wartime Good Americanism awards for his patriotic (civilian) war service," preening and praising himself for promoting hospital entertainments on the home front.

I owe Mr. Fidler a debt for proving my whole case about his amazing cult of Hollywood journalism in those few words.

Here is one of them who confers his own knighthoods.

Hollywood

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30 - Mark Hellinger, who bought "Knock on Any Door," Willard Motley's powerful story of juvenile delinquency, told me that Humphrey Bogart will be starred.

"Not in the role of Nickie, whose environment turns him into a vicious public enemy," said Mark, "but as the lawyer, Morton. I intend to tell the whole story through the eyes of Morton. Of course, the role of Nickie will be very important, too, and I am looking for an actor to play the boy who later becomes a criminal."

Humphrey Bogart

"Knock on Any Door" will be one of the pictures to be made under the David Selznick agreement. This novel breaks your heart, it's so tragic. Mark has already started studying the terrific problem of wayward youth and what causes it, and you can wager he'll have a great movie.

I'M GLAD Arthur Lake isn't giving up "Dagwood" in those popular "Blondie" movies permanently. But he is giving up his sandwich inventing friend for his first fling as an independent producer. Under the banner of Arthur Lake Productions, Inc., Arthur and Vice-President Irving Allen and Secretary and Treasurer James Burkette are making "16 Fathoms Deep," a tall yarn about deep sea divers.

In fact, they have already shot many scenes at Tarpon Springs in Florida and returned to Hollywood just before the hurricane. That was lucky. But it isn't so lucky that scenes they planned to make in California don't match up with the Florida colors (forgot to say it's in Ansco color)—and so they have to return to Florida.

THERE IS $300,000 invested in Edna Ferber's novel, "Great Son," which Mike Todd was to make for Universal-International. After Mike left, it reverted back to the Goetz organization. It's a great story and actually has the potentialities for a screen hit, the same as the never-to-be-forgotten "Cimarron."

'Tis whispered on the U-I lot that Chester Erskine will probably be given the producing job, and naturally, an important cast will be assembled. But, with this cutting down of budget, and the money already invested, naturally U-I is moving slowly.

Wouldn't Ingrid Bergman be wonderful as the Swedish sweetheart? Well, I can think, can't I, even if it can't happen.

THROUGH THE DEAR, dear grapevine, I hear that "Gus the Great," the story of a man who yearned to own a circus, and finally does, has been bought by Universal-International. I wonder who will play Augustus Howard Burgoyne - "The Great Gus"? He was quite a character.

The book, by Thomas W. Douglas, has kept me from my sleep for the last few nights, because once I started it I couldn't put it down, and it's a long book. Quite a coup for Universal-International to get his novel, and I understand they bought it before it was headed for the best seller list.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: John Payne, telephoned to say it's true he made an honest mistake in turning down "Sitting Pretty" and that he's on suspension.

"But," said John, "I am asking for my release from Twentieth because I have been wailing around for seven months without a picture and I want to work. I would like either to be given out on loan or have a picture at my own studio. There are no hard feelings at the studio, but if there isn't a place for me I'd like to go somewhere else."

Now, John, there certainly is a place for you, because you have a big following and this will probably all be straightened out.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD collected at random: Florence George, Everett Crosby's wife, bowed out of "Music in My Heart" after she was in only one night. Nobody understands why, because her notices were excellent.

Florence George

Maxine Fife, former Copacabana girl, and Lazla, furniture designer, have made plans to marry very soon.

For the first time since their feud over politics started and Katie Hepburn lambasted Bob Taylor at the Henry Wallace rally, they were on a radio show together.

Clark Gable told me one time when we were talking, that if he read all the stories he was credited with reading he'd never have time for anything else. He says he's constantly picking up a newspaper seeing where he's given his approval to some story he never even heard of.

But I happen to know that Clark is really interested in starring in the life of the Mexican patriot, Zapata, which Metro will film next year. Clark has read the story and will probably do it, with Mervyn Leroy directing.

THERE'S BEEN so much talk about Diana Lynn's future—that she was leaving Paramount; that she was free lancing and she was going on a concert tour, so it's interesting to get some definite news.

She has a new deal with Paramount, but she will make only one picture a year for them. Wynn Rocamora today arranged with Henry Ginsberg to let her make outside pictures.

Diana is not leaving home, as has been reported. She at one time contemplated it but now everything is all right with her mother and the chances are that before many days you will hear of the official announcement of her engagement to Robert Neal, her Texas boy friend.

MARK STEVENS' week-end was spent at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital. He's there with a stomach disorder but expects to be out in a day or so.

I am sorry to say that the stork will not visit Cy Bartlett and Ellen Drew. She lost the expected baby.

Gary Cooper is getting more serious about his oil painting by the moment. He has just finished six canvases.

Joan Caulfield has been seeing John McLain, the writer, very often of late.

The deal for Robert Montgomery to play the lead in "Act of Violence" for Warners is very hot.

Kim Hunter goes to New York for one of the roles in "Streetcar Named Desire," Irene Selznick's stage play.

Prince Youka Troubetzkoy, Barbara Hutton's brother-in-law, arrives here next week from Paris and will be the house guest of the Mischa Auers.

Eve Arden is plotting a trip to Mexico for a vacation as soon as "Biography" closes.

Burt Lancaster is taking daily tennis lessons from Eleanor Tennant, and he has plenty of fun spectators, let me tell you.

For the first time in 13 years, Mary Pickford donned greasepaint. She is in the trailer of "Sleep My Love," and Buddy Rogers, who made the picture, directed her.

Bob Cresby and his wife hosted a party at Peggy Cleary's Talk of the Town.

Warners are looking for a new rooster for the Warner Pathe newsreel. The old one is reggone tired of crowin'.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 — Kenneth Claiborne Royall got his big start toward being our new Secretary of the Army by defending German spies!

He put up a staunch but losing battle for the eight Nazi saboteurs landed on Long Island and Florida from U-boats. In the war hysteria many Americans failed to appreciate why he was defending his country's enemies.

His life was threatened; the FBI wanted to put guards around his home but he declined. One war mother sent him a length of rope with instructions to hang himself.

His own explanation is this: "My defense of the Nazi spies was like a thing that happened down in my hometown of Goldsboro, N. C. A young fellow started dating a girl but had been out with her only a few times when her father called him in and asked if his intentions were honorable.

"'My gosh!' beamed the boy, 'do you mean I have a choice?'"

He meant, of course, that he had been appointed defense counsel by President Roosevelt and that, as a colonel in the Army, he couldn't decline. He has been a strange combination of soldier and lawyer all his adult life—having risen as high as major general.

THE NEW Secretary of the Army is a product of unification but he was unified long before unification. He was in the Army; his brother was in the Air Force; his son was in the Marines; and his son-in-law was in the Navy.

Until a couple of weeks ago he was Secretary of War but we no longer have a war department. So even if we have war, we won't have any Secretary of War.

I sought the interview with the new Secretary of the Army because I discovered that few people, including myself, knew much personally of the four leaders of our military might. So I arranged to spend time with all four, trying to determine what made them tick. Yesterday I told you about John L. Sullivan, the new Secretary of the Navy. I will tell you anon about W. Stuart Symington, the new Secretary of the Air Force and James V. Forrestal, the new Secretary of Defense. But today, we have the Secretary of the Army.

I had to wait to see him because I was somewhat outranked. A patty named Eisenhower was closeted with him. When I finally got in, he was madly wolfing ice cream. His wife says he is an ice cream fiend—that he'd even eat it for breakfast if she'd let him.

There are four Kenneths in the secretary's family—himself, his son, his son's son, and his daughter's son. When he refers to "my grandson, Kenneth" you've got to guess which one he means.

At 53, Secretary Royall is a three-time grandfather. His daughter Margaret's Kenneth raised bloody murder at the recent solemn swear-in ceremony. The kid saw his grandfather and screamed madly to go to him.

Recently, Mr. and Mrs. Royall went to Durham, N. C., to visit the two other Kenneths. They thought they knew the house, but weren't sure. Mr. Royall rang the doorbell and a girl about 14 answered.

"Who lives here?" he asked. The girl looked at him blankly and said: "I don't know."

"You don't know?" gaped Mr. Royall. "Well, can you tell me where Mr. Kenneth Royall lives?"

The girl said she didn't know that either. The Secretary was becoming flabbergasted when the girl's face suddenly brightened.

"I'm the baby sitter," she explained. "There's a baby here. Maybe if you came and looked at it you might know whose baby it is?"

"Sure enough," added Mr. Royall, "it was our grandson."

THE ARMY'S SECRETARY is six feet five inches and weighs 250 pounds, which makes him exactly a foot taller, and I would never dare guess how many pounds heavier, than his pretty red-headed wife, Margaret. Once, in Casablanca, he wanted to get on a plane and he heard a sergeant, who thought he was out of earshot, yell: "Hey, Jim, take off 500 pounds of freight and put one general on."

Help President Save Food

By MARTHA LEE, Household Editor

TODAY, MEAL PLANNERS everywhere are concerned with the steep prices of food—as they well may be. But they should keep in mind that there are still many ways to beat the high cost of living, to eat tasty, nutritious meals and at the same time support President Truman in his appeal to conserve food.

Suppose we do have to cut down on meat—there are other foods that contain similar nutrients which we look to meat to supply. Eggs, milk and milk products, for instance, are good body-building foods—as are cereals. These foods in appetizing combinations add up to a very satisfactory, balanced diet.

To meet the need of the present day home executive, experts of the famous Good Housekeeping Institute have prepared a series of economy menus, the first of which appeared in the Boston American yesterday. Here is the second—and watch for subsequent menus during the week.

BREAKFAST

Sliced Oranges
Choice of Cereal — Milk
Scrambled Eggs — Toast
Coffee

LUNCHEON

Toasted Peanut Butter Sandwiches
Bowl of Tossed Green Salad
Baked Custards
Ginger Cookies — Tea

DINNER

Scalloped Tuna and Potatoes
Buttered Carrots
Tomato and Cabbage Slaw
Bread and Butter
Deep Dish Apple Pie — Milk

SCALLOPED TUNA AND POTATOES

4 cups thinly sliced, pared potatoes
¼ cup flour
2 cups bottled milk, or
1 cup evaporated milk and 1 cup water
1 tsp. salt
1 7-oz. can tuna, flaked (1 cup)
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
2 tbsp. prepared mustard
¼ tsp. pepper
1 cup thinly sliced, peeled onions

Cook thinly sliced potatoes in boiling salted water 10 minutes. Drain. Meanwhile, melt butter in top of double boiler over direct heat. Stir in flour, then mustard. Add milk, salt, pepper and stir over boiling water until smooth and thickened. Arrange potatoes, tuna and onions in alternate layers in greased 2-quart casserole. Pour sauce over all; bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 45 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Add another can of tuna for a richer dish.

BAKED CUSTARDS

4 eggs
¼ to ⅓ cup sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 qt. scalded milk
½ to 1 tsp. vanilla extract

Beat the eggs slightly, add the sugar and salt and mix well. Add the scalded milk gradually while stirring constantly. Flavor with vanilla and a sprinkle of nutmeg, if desired. Mix thoroughly. Butter 6 custard cups and pour in the custard mixture. Place in a shallow pan containing warm water and bake in a slow oven (325 deg. F.) 40 minutes. Be sure the water under the custard does not boil. Test custard by inserting a silver knife which has been dipped in water, into the custard. If it comes out clean the custard is done. Half cream and half milk may be used in this recipe to give a richer dessert. ½ cup stoned diced dates may be added. Makes 6 servings.

AT HOME or abroad . . . this gray shadow-plaid suit and jacket ensemble by that master-tailor-designer Philip Mangone is equally smart. The long-jacketed suit has a high neckline and pockets on each hip . . . while the three-quarter-length topping coat is lined with gray muskrat and features roomy, cuffed sleeves. There's elegant nonchalance in this outfit—R. M.

Good Manners

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A few days ago a friend of mine (also a married woman) and I attended a formal tea given by a kindly woman here for the sponsors of a charity movement to be started in our community. Present at the tea was a woman reporter for our local newspaper, and we were asked by our hostess to sign our names for the reporter, who was sending a list of sponsors (those who had already agreed to be sponsors and those who decided at the tea to be enrolled as sponsors) to be published in the newspaper. My friend signed "Mrs. John Smith," but I signed "Mrs. Mary Smith." (Of course I'm using these names only as examples.) Which of us was right?

READER.

Your friend was right. Correctly you should have written your formal name "Mrs. John Smith" which, correctly, is the form of name that should be published in the list of sponsors.

Economy Luncheon for Today

Sheer Nylons Highlight Legs

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

AS FAR BACK as last January we told you that dark, gossamer-sheer nylons were the coming vogue (we've been wearing ours since then) . . . and now they are the accepted fashion. We can remember the ohs and ahs of approval that went up from the male contingent in our office when we wore sheer navy with a blue outfit . . . and spider-web-sheer black with a black costume.

Now, no fashion-respecting girl would wear any other kind of hose but the smoky or taupe shades of nylon. And they are flattering. For an unbroken continuity of the silhouette . . . they carry the eye softly and gracefully from hemline to shoeline.

There's no denying that dark stockings have given a new look to women's legs. But this look can be pretty or ugly . . . fetching or repelling . . . depending on two things. One . . . your stockings must be sheer, cobweb sheer or the illusion is missing. Two, your legs must be flawlessly hair-free . . . so that not even the slightest trace of fuzz can be seen by your most sharp-sighted friends.

HIRSUTE LETDOWN

A few nights back we covered a stunning fashion show. You'd think a model would know better . . . or maybe she did, but didn't care, since she was a New York glamor gal who possibly thought Boston wasn't aware of dark nylons. At any rate, she wore the dark sheers but our eagle eyes . . . or maybe it was because we had a ringside seat . . . saw plainly and visibly . . . and it was a disgusting sight, we assure you . . . her limbs covered with superfluous hair. There was no reason for such a presentation. The clothes she modeled were prize winners . . . even though the model wasn't. There were unflattering comments from other tables.

It brought home forcibly to me that we must remind every last one of our readers never to make a public appearance in these dark sheers unless the legs were defuzzed, but definitely. In ordinary hose . . . this sin could be easily covered. But not this season . . . when sheers are the thing and legs must be made fit to wear them.

Fortunately, today this is really no problem. Hair can be removed painlessly and quickly with an odorless, creamy white depilatory that is not only easy to use . . . but conditions the legs to a smooth prettiness. No goose-pimply effect is left . . . and the leg skin is as soft to the touch as down.

This cream depilatory comes in a tube.

For the name of this cream leg-smoother and hair remover, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, any day, except Sunday, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE SEASON'S "new look" definitely includes sheer dark hose . . . which certainly makes smooth, hair-free legs a MUST. So don't only be color-aware this fall . . . but clean-limb conscious as well. You can add to the illusion . . . not spoil it . . . if you groom your legs with an odorless, creamy white depilatory that does its work speedily and pleasantly.

Struggles With Problem

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LESLIE B., who is 18 and soon to graduate from high school, is struggling with a problem that seems increasingly to confront the younger generation. While it is one of the most difficult problems that young people have to solve, the very fact that it presents itself so much more frequently these days than it did in former years is a hopeful sign of the times, for it means that the most thoughtful boys and girls of today are trying to work their way toward a happier tomorrow.

This problem, which she is trying to solve and which is such a very significant one, she explains as follows:

"I have known D. since I was a child and we always liked one another and got along very well together. As we grew older, our relations with each other changed, too, and now we find that we like each other in a different way. I go out with him a lot and he is very sweet to me. I have known quite a few boys, but none as polite and as nice as D. It is not that we are serious about each other—at least not yet—for we both plan careers, but we want to remain friends and maybe some day, when we are older, we may find we are in love."

HER PROBLEM

And now here's the crux of the problem:

"My parents are against our being friends now that we are older, for D. of a different nationality and religion from mine. His parents like me and never said anything against my religion or nationality, and I don't like my parents to find fault with him just because of this difference.

"My two cousins had the same trouble that I am having now. They fell in love with girls of of different religions and when they wanted to get married everyone said it wouldn't work out. Both of them have been married two years now and are parents. I think they are the happiest-married in the whole family."

FINE VIEWPOINT

I think, Leslie, that you are very right, indeed, and I hope you will be able to spread that very fine viewpoint of yours, not only in your own family, but among all the young people with whom you come in contact. If you make it part of your purpose in life invariably to act in accordance with the philosophy you have expressed, you will make an important contribution to the cause of tolerance.

It is perfectly natural for your parents to have doubts about the wisdom of marriage between two young people whose fundamental training has been along very different lines, for such a situation does present its own peculiar difficulties.

For the time being, try to understand your parents' viewpoint, but, at the same time, stick quietly to your own way of thinking in this matter. If you handle things tactfully, it is quite likely that you can win them over in the end.

Sewing Circles

THE WORD "SEWING" is not synonymous with "social" in Mr. Webster's famous book of words. But Mr. Webster lived a long time ago and was not too familiar with the activities of Boston's famous Sewing Circles which are social clubs of the most exclusive sort.

Having often described them in this column we are interested in Cleveland Amory's paragraphs about Sewing Circles in his article about Boston's Old Guard in a current national magazine. Son of one of the Hub's first families, young Mr. Amory has written a history of Boston society entitled "The Proper Bostonian." The book is soon to be published with the current article embodied in it.

Mrs. William H. Gabel

He writes: "Boston's Sewing Circles are a unique feature among present-day city societies. In other cities these Circles have all but died out; but in Boston such Circles as the 97 and the 99, both of which are named from their founding dates, 1897 and 1899, still go merrily on their way.

"Sewing Circle 97 is particularly swank. Limited to 60 members with three blackballs sufficient to keep out any proposed candidate — it meets once a week for lunch from November through May and costs just $2 a year. Members no longer sew for charity as they did in bygone days, but instead are asked to contribute two articles of clothing to some charity each season. They meet on Wednesdays, rotating from dining room to dining room in members' houses. A rule of the Circle states severely the terms of this meal—luncheon shall be served promptly at 1 p. m. and shall consist of two solids, a sweet, bread, cake, tea, coffee or chocolate.'

In society's younger generation the Junior League has taken the place of the Sewing Circle. After its organization following the first world war the elite debs of each season joined the League instead of banding together in a Sewing Circle, and they do much more for charity in that each League member is required to do a certain amount of volunteer work in hospitals and social agencies. Sewing Circle members nowadays almost unanimously agree they mostly "eat and run" at the Wednesday meetings so they can get to the contract bridge and duplicate tournaments on time.

Just to name a handful of Sewing Circle members at random we recall Mrs. John S. Ames, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Miss Louise Coburn, Mrs. Channing Frothingham, Mrs. C. Handasyde Whitney, Mrs. Alan Forbes, Miss Elizabeth Leland, Mrs. Henry S. Grew and Mrs. Henry V. Greenough.

PICTURESQUE CHRIST CHURCH, Hamilton, will be the setting for a lovely wedding Saturday when Constance Whitney Minot will become the bride of Harry James Crossan, Jr. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson Minot of Boston and Beverly. Her fiance is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Crossan of Bakersfield, Cal.

Connie will have Gloria Gilman of Washington, D. C., as maid of honor and her sister, Mrs. William H. Gabel (Eleanor Minot), as matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be her other two sisters, Mrs. Thomas F. Moseley and Miriam Mason Minot.

Mr. Gabel will be best man and Mr. Moseley head usher assisted by Richard D. Sears, 3d, Frank W. Holsinger, James Gilman, Frederick B. Myers and David E. Horne.

Miss Minot attended Beaver Country Day and belongs to the Junior League and Vincent Club. Mr. Crossan graduated from the University of California and is now at Harvard Business School.

Movie Czar Denies House Red Propaganda Charges

By DAVID SENTNER

Boston Evening American Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—The motion picture industry today challenged the House committee on un-American activities to show any Communist propaganda in the films.

Eric Johnston, head of the Motion Picture Assn of America and the Assn of Motion Picture Producers, scorned "without reservation" the committee's charge that there was any subversive or un-American propaganda on the screen.

In a letter to Rep J. Parnell Thomas, chairman of the committee which opens its inquiry into Communist influence in Hollywood Oct 20, Johnston further asserted:

"This industry has been charged with having Communists or Communists sympathizers in its employ.

"Undoubtedly there are such persons in Hollywood as there are elsewhere in America. We neither shield nor defend them. We want to see them exposed.

"We have no responsibility for the political or economic views of any individual. But we are responsible for what goes on the screen. We watch that carefully. If Communists have attempted to inject their propaganda into our pictures, they have failed miserably."

A member of the House committee, commenting unofficially on the Johnston letter, predicted that the evidence to be presented regarding Communist influence in the films would either show that the industry was "gullible as a newborn lamb" or blinded to the situation by box-office considerations.

A report submitted by committee staff investigators on Hollywood asserts:

"Communistic propaganda is inserted in many motion pictures, particularly through the medium of short film subjects. Some of the major feature pictures produced by the industry contain Communistic propaganda in the form of the spoken word."

Waitress Cleared Of Biting Ballplayer

CHICAGO, Sept. 30 (AP)—A disorderly conduct charge against Miss Kay Gidd, 26, waitress accused of biting pitcher Russ Meyer of the Chicago Cubs on the nose July 21, stood dismissed today in municipal court after none of the principals appeared.

The fracas occurred in a North Side tavern. A $50,000 damage suit filed by Miss Gidd against Myer, charging him with assault and battery, had been settled out of court.

Destroyer Blast Off Trieste Probed

TRIESTE, Sept. 30 (INS)—Naval authorities today pressed an investigation into the mine explosion about 25 miles west of Trieste that killed three Navy men and injured 12 others aboard the badly damaged destroyer Douglas H. Fox.

The 2200-ton Fox, veteran of the battle of Okinawa, suffered a shattered stern and crippled steering equipment in the collision with the submerged mine south of the Italian port of Grado.

One enlisted man died immediately in the blast which occurred when the vessel was returning from a routine run. The others died later while the destroyer Owen was transferring the victims to Trieste.

MT. PULASKI, Ill., Sept. 30 (AP)—An automobile bearing a sign, "Taft for President," has been chugging along Mt. Pulaski streets but the senator from Ohio need not get excited about it.

It's a two-cylinder 1907 model car with kerosene lights, a buggy top and solid rubber wheels.

The sign, 39 years old, was used during the 1908 campaign of William Howard Taft, Republican president from 1909-1913 and father of Sen. Taft.

The car's owner, Kent O. Miller, is a Democrat.

'Duet for Two Hands' Greeted

By PEGGY DOYLE

Preceded by a year's successful run in London and another 12 months of healthy business in the British provinces two seasons ago, Robert Reud's star-spangled production, "Duet for Two Hands," last night began a week's engagement at the Wilbur.

This is what is known as a psychological thriller, but, leave us face it, it is no "Angel Street," another British import, nor "Ladies in Retirement," which was also staged by Reginald Denham.

Ably, at times brilliantly acted by co-stars Francis L. Sullivan, the ominously deliberate Jaggers of "Great Expectations," and Joyce Redman, the young British actress who thrilled the critics and paying customers several years ago in the visiting Old Vic's productions on Broadway, the Wilbur's crime play owes more to them, scene designer Charles Elson and Denham's staging and lighting than to Mary Hayley Bell's script.

DESOLATE SCENE

The action takes place in 1901 in an isolated castle on the Orkneys, where the wind and the rain and never-quiet native birds stress the desolation.

Here arrive a poet and a surgeon, both rather celebrated. The one has lost his hands and acquired through the other's skilled surgery the hands of a man hanged for murder.

Over-indulgence in a lethal Swedish brew provokes the truculent medical man to make unethical revelations to his daughter.

In horror, she tells her aunt, who is aware of her attraction for the poet, that her father has grafted the hands of the man she loved (who was hanged for murder) on the young man. She insists that they leave the place, that she never wants to see either man again.

HER TERROR IS REAL

Miss Redman's terror is as real as her enchanting provocativeness, and Sullivan's paranoic surgeon whose sadistic pleasure it is to see his victims squirm looms as one of the theater's genuinely evil humpty-dumptys. But the script, alas, never builds, interrupting itself repeatedly with anticlimactic exchanges of dialogue.

Joe McCarthy to Renew Interest Of Fans in Sox

By JACK CONWAY

THE SIGNING of Joe McCarthy to a two year contract to manage the Red Sox was the most popular thing Tom Yawkey could have done to instill new interest in his club and make the fans feel that Boston will be very much in the American League pennant fight next year.

McCarthy was rated as the No. 1 manager in baseball at the time he resigned his post as pilot of the Yanks. In a poll of the fans taken by this writer several years ago McCarthy was placed in first position among the managers with Billy Southworth of the Braves, at the time boss of the Cards, in second place. Southworth moved into first position in our ratings when McCarthy sought rest on his farm outside Buffalo. During the past season Southworth has certainly worked wonders with the Braves.

Last spring at Fort Lauderdale Southworth told this writer he expected the Cardinals to win the pennant with the Dodgers second and the Braves close up to the leaders in third position. The Cardinals did not come up to Southworth's expectations, but the Braves certainly did.

McCarthy worked his baseball magic when Col. Jake Ruppert owned the Yanks and Ed Barrow was in charge of the business office. McCarthy and Larry MacPhail are different types of personalities, MacPhail a firebrand who pops off without warning, McCarthy the steady, easy going type of leader. While McCarthy never made a statement on the matter, persons close to the Yanks' baseball picture felt Joe liked things better under the Ruppert-Barrow setup.

Never Made a Baseball Mistake

JOE McCARTHY, in the opinion of Joe DiMaggio, never made a baseball mistake.

"Babe Ruth was the perfect ballplayer," Joe said as we chatted baseball, "while Joe McCarthy was always the class of the managers. He never made a baseball mistake.

"Bill Dickey had a tough job following in McCarthy's shoes. He lacked experience, and it was natural he made mistakes. This was one of the reasons the Red Sox won the pennant last year."

The Yanks then got an experienced manager in Stanley Harris and today are in the World Series against the Dodgers.

McCarthy always liked Boston and New England and the fans here are certain to give their full support to the keen, open faced Irishman who loves baseball next to the members of his own family.

McCarthy is modest in victory and never alibied for any of his setbacks. It was our good fortune to be toastmaster at a private dinner the Yanks once gave to Joe McCarthy in Boston when the club clinched the pennant here in prewar days. Joe gave full credit for the victory to his players. He did not dwell on his own baseball magic which turned many possible defeats into victories.

McCarthy will experience no difficulty in handling Ted Williams, Johnny Pesky, Bobby Doerr and the other Sox stars. They will look to Joe as a leader who knows more about baseball than they do and who can help them climb the ladder of success.

IT WAS a smart move on the part of Tom Yawkey to sign McCarthy as successor to Joe Cronin. The Braves under Billy Southworth have become more popular than the Red Sox, and if Yawkey had not placed a popular baseball idol like McCarthy at the head of his baseball club the Tribe would have increased its popularity edge over the Sox by a larger margin next season.

Now it will be a hard battle for popular favor between the Southworth managed Braves and the Sox piloted by McCarthy. The Sox have better baseball material than their National League rival, but if Messrs. Perini, Rugo and Maney can give Southworth more players of the calibre of Bob Elliott there will not be any differences in the strength of the two clubs.

Cronin Moves Into Front Office

THIS WRITER declared a long time back that Joe Cronin would move into the front office as General Manager next season. Cronin is well schooled for his new position, and his choice was an excellent one. Even when the Sox have been floundering Cronin has always managed to maintain his great popularity with the public and with his players.

Cronin was a much better competitive athlete than he was a manager. When the big chips were down and Joe was at bat, he usually came through with the needed hit.

Eddie Collins remains as vice president of the club. Collins looked in fine health when this writer met him at the Duffy Lewis dinner. Collins lacks the gushing personality of Cronin, and the open faced manner of McCarthy, but those persons who have got to know him well like his strong character. Collins is an excellent judge of ballplayers, and let us hope he can find a few more players who are near the amazing ability of Ted Williams. It was Collins who always handled Williams, and the league's leading batter looked to Eddie for counsel and advice.

It is McCarthy, however, who will give the Sox their big punch next season. Here's wishing you success, Joe.

Series May Go Down in History As Most Rowdy-Dow of All

By HUCK FINNEGAN

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—The feud is on, boys. It's Brooklyn vs. the Yankees at the Yankee Stadium today in the first game of the World Series that may go down in history as the most rowdy-dow ever staged. This is Hatfield-McCoy, Boston College-Holy Cross, Harvard-Yale on the baseball diamond. Spikes will gleam as they did in Ty Cobb's heyday.

Ed Stanky was the first Brooklyn batter scheduled to take his stance against the Yanks' Frank Shea, and if he doesn't bite the dust on the first pitch, he seems sure to duck on the second.

This is the culmination of the feud which started when Branch Rickey moved into MacPhail's place at Brooklyn while MacPhail was in the Army. Culmination of the feud between the two which saw Durocher barred from baseball for the '47 season, and Durocher not being in the original argument.

Here are Coaches Chuck Dressen and Red Corriden working for MacPhail in New York where both worked for Rickey in Brooklyn last year.

The 1941 World Series between the rival factions was supposed to have been the most acerbic ever staged. This is bound to outdo it from here to there.

Added to all this background, Brooklyn is burned up because Bucky Harris refused to let the Dodgers practice in Yankee Stadium. In all the 43 years of World Series competition, this is the first time it ever happened. "Unfair advantage," shriek Dodger partisans who were anxious to have their favorite sons acquaint themselves with the shadows and peculiar contours of the park.

The feud is on, and though Brooklyn will scrap to the last man, the advantage seems to lie with the Yanks.

They have the edge in pitching, no question. Shea today, Reynolds tomorrow, Newsom in Brooklyn Thursday is the set-up. All are ready. In addition, strong-armed southpaw Joe Page is fit to resume the marvelous relief work which Bucky Harris says made him the most valuable player in the league this past season. As southpaw pitching annoys Brooklyn, Howie Pollet, sore arm and all, whipped the Dodgers four times this season. And Warren Spahn did it thrice, lost a fourth decision when Fernandez booted a ball at shortstop.

On the other hand, Brooklyn's pitching is in sorry shape unless Dodger propagandists are at work. Branca is supposed to be so excitable that Shotton didn't dare tell him he was pitching today for fear he wouldn't sleep. The Yankees will remind him of it. Yanks know, too, that Dodger pitchers completed only some 40 of their 154 games this year. They'll hear of that, also.

Rookie Harry Taylor's arm is supposed to ache so much he won't work unless the weather turns summerish. And relief man Hugh Casey, who means so much to the Dodgers as does Page to the Yanks, may see no work at all unless the temperature zooms upward. Casey asked to be relieved from his scheduled tune-up in Boston, and nobody can recall when Casey refused to work before, in Arctic or springtime weather.

Dodgers had another worry on their hands or rather in the right hand of catcher Bruce Edwards. Forced to leave the game twice within the past week because of a finger injury, Dodger chances of victory would go dancing out the window if Edwards were forced to leave the game early.

This is one department—catching—where Brooklyn should hold the edge. Dodgers are supposed to steal the gloves of Berra and Robinson, while Edwards is said to be the peerless thrower, though the Braves worked two double steals on him in the same inning last week.

Yanks have the edge in power with DiMaggio, Lindell, Henrich and Johnson all capable of breaking up a game with one swish of the bat. Dodgers depend on singles and legwork for their runs.

Maybe the Yanks are over-confident. Certainly as they pranced through their Monday workout they gave no show of nerves. They seemed as carefree as they did in spring training. They fear not the Dodgers' spikes.

"Dodgers will be thinking of '41," said one of the Yanks. That was the Series when a Casey pitch broke through Mickey Owen and a game, seemingly a Brooklyn victory, went to the Yanks in the waning moments. "This is going to be a short series, and we're going to win it."

This first game is all-important. Joe McCarthy admits the winner of the first game has a tremendous advantage. Mayhap for that reason, Burt Shotton would shoot southpaw Vic Lombardi at the Yanks in place of Branca. Lombardi is 25, four years older than the 21-game winner, and has been steady the past two months. He's a grand competitor, too.

The feud is on, at any rate, and maybe a few spike wounds will tell tonight whether the bell will ring for the Yanks or Dodgers.

COIN PICKS YANKS

Jack Conway, back in action on all fronts once more, today dusted off his famous Magic Coin, tossed it in the air, and saw it pick the Yanks to win over the Dodgers in the World Series.

"It will be an exciting series," Jack said after his coin made its selection, "and I am going to risk a few bobs on the Yanks. Oh, yes! The Coin let me down in the series a year ago when it picked the Red Sox to beat the Cardinals."

There's Nothing Like the Series; Part of America

By BILL CORUM

NEW YORK, Sept. 30—Now here it is again. The greatest sports show on earth. America's only annual combined corn huskin,' fish fry and strawberry festival—the old World Series come around once more.

Old, I said, and old it is in one way, for this will be the 44th one that they'll be starting in the Yankee Stadium this afternoon. Yet, in another way, the World Series is forever young and renews itself from year to year.

There's nothing else like it, and, for many of us, no thrill to compare with the one it brings around each autumn.

On Sunday afternoon, at the Stadium, a gray-haired old fellow of 80 in the uniform of the Cleveland Indians doffed his cap to the scant crowd that had gathered to see one of the most memory-prodding collections of old-time stars ever gathered in any ball park.

The old fellow was the "Peoli Farmer," or, if you like alliteration, the "Red Cloud Cannoneer." His name is Young—Denton Tecumseh "Cy"—and as long as books of baseball records are printed his will be written large in them and remembered.

He made the first World Series pitch ever made back there in 1903 in Boston. For the same Red Sox (Good news, good news!) that Marse Joe McCarthy now goes to manage. There can't be too many of the likes of Marse Joe in baseball, and this one from Buffalo can't be around too long. He's as sound as a buffalo nickel, and worth a lot more in any league.

But we were back in 1903 with Cy Young. In 1903, this fan was learning about baseball from pictures out of Sweet Caporal cigarette packages, and when you saw a woman—no lady—smoking a cigarette that was wickedness run wild.

Cy Young literally came into the big leagues in short pants. When he reported to Cleveland in 1890, he was wearing a suit the trousers of which came half way between his knees and his ankles.

Alex Picked Up Where Cy Left Off

I GUESS you could have said of Cy's pants that they were hitting about .250. Anyhow, the first thing the Cleveland club did for him was to buy him a new, city-slicker suit. Pegtops, no less, and ox-blood oxfords. The club probably wondered about this profligacy if it would ever get its money back.

The next day it knew. Because the next day they let him pitch against Cap Anson's Chicago White Stockings, and big Cy came down on top.

That night Anson offered a thousand dollars for him. A thousand dollars hard money.

"No," said Dave Howley of the Indians, after some thought. "If I remember right, Cap, that big Rube struck you out twice. So I guess we'll keep him."

Through 22 summers, Cy stood out there and poured tea in the afternoon.

He won 511 games, the top figure of all time. He struck out almost 3000 batsmen. For 14 consecutive seasons, he won 20 or more games.

And, finally, on Sept. 26, 1911, pitching for the Braves now instead of the Red Sox, he hooked up with a rookie whose name was Grover Cleveland Alexander. This Alexander was destined to write a little World Series history, too, if you recall. Something about a chap named Lazerri, wasn't it?

The Ohio farmer, with his little cap riding high on his head and his baseball pants tight and short about his knees, and the freckled Nebraska telephone lineman came down there, head and head through most of the nine frames.

At the end, "Young Alex" pulled it out. But do you know by how much the rookie beat him? One-for-0 was all.

When he came back to the clubhouse, Cy put his glove in a suitcase instead of his locker, and that night he took the train for Peoli, O.

Part of America

FORTY YEARS hence, "Spec" Shea of Naugutuck, Ct., who'll make the first pitch of this 44th series as Bucky Harris' starting pitcher, may be coming back to a "serious" as one of the honored old timers.

We can hope that "Spec" will and hope even more than 40 years from now the World Series will just be getting into stride.

I wish that I could write well enough to put into exact, and telling words how I really feel about baseball and these annual autumn battles for the world's championship. As ball games they are just ball games. Thrilling, good, indifferent and plumb bad ball games.

Yet, somehow, to me these series weave a small corner of the skein of the pattern that makes America.

They do not belong to Commr. Chandler, however he may think about it. They didn't belong to Judge Landis. They don't belong to the owners of the clubs and, frankly, the owners and bigwigs of baseball have done little to make them what they are.

The writer has no better friends in the game than Sam Breadon and Eddie Dyer, owner and manager, respectively, of the Cardinals. Yet he burns to read in the stories of Dyer's re-signing with the St. Louis club that neither gentleman will attend the series because they are too busy.

Heart's With Brooks

TO BUSY at what? It is my conviction that nobody in baseball has a right, barring ill health or the like, to be too busy to come to the World Series. If fans from Texas and Louisiana and Maine and California and Iowa and the State of Washington can battle to get tickets and hotel rooms to see the series, I must believe it is good enough for those who live from the game to see.

This fall, for the first time, Larry MacPhail has done something different and constructive about the series by bringing back the old timers as guests of the Yankees. Larry has a lot of ideas but this one wasn't original with him. Modesty forbids our saying with whom it did originate.

Which is wholly unimportant. What is important is that we have a great series. I believe we will have. My heart is with the Brooks but my head is with the Yanks.

CLASSIC DOESN'T START UNTIL IT HITS BROOKLYN

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

(Written especially for International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (INS)—Back in 1661 the Schout and the Schepens of the Court of Breuckelen never figured they would have a World Series in the Old Burg.

But in 1860, the Excelsiors of Brooklyn knocked off the Niagaras of Buffalo 50 to 19. And they haven't closed the doors on the monkey house since.

It was the first recorded tour of any organized posse comitatus equipped with spiked feet, chest protector and slapstick.

The boys played the Brooklyn brand of baseball, claiming everything and conceding nothing. They painted their foul lines with vanishing cream, ran traplines in the outfield and slid to first on a base on balls.

The Mutuals, the Atlantics and the Eckfords all claimed the Tidewater championship. But they were all walloped by the Cincinnati Reds in 1869. It wasn't until 1883 that Charley Byrnes put the Brooklyns in the Interstate League. This circuit was hooked up with the American Association.

When the Brooklyns or Mutuals won the American Association flag in 1889, Byrnes took the winners into the National League. And, believe it or the marching Ripleys, they won the National League title in 1890.

All Brooklyn china is chipped. And nowhere do the pots crack louder than in the ball park. Here are a couple of plays that occurred in the land of the screwball and the home of the crackaloo:

Like Victoria the Dodgers had to be awakened by a committee to be informed they were queen.

They won a game in the last of September they had started in August.

Completely inundated by the soft-boiled climate Beansy Reardon originated the play now known as the umpire's choice.

We all remember how Casey lost a series by striking a man out.

Another Casey, y-clept Stengel, who tipped his hat and a bird flew out. And who was fired for thumbing his nose instead of a ride.

Sure, they backed into the pennant. But they also backed into 94 games before that. They haven't got any Ty Cobbs, Babe Ruths, Walter Johnsons or Rube Waddells. But that old Spider managed to get across the washtub. And today the Dodgers play the Yanks in Manhattan.

But the series doesn't start until they reach Brooklyn. Anything can happen where the tree that grew in Brooklyn was sawed up into extra bleacher seats.

Yanks in 4 Straight, Says Ted

By TED WILLIAMS

Written Exclusively for International Newsservice

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (INS)—A big edge in power and what I believe to be an important edge in pitching figures to win the World Series for the Yankees over the Dodgers in a maximum of five games.

The Yankees ought to do it in four, as I have predicted before.

I am an American Leaguer and everybody will immediately say that I am stringing along with the Yankees on that account.

Just to straighten out everybody on that point, I would pick the Dodgers to win if I thought they could. What league I play in wouldn't make the slightest difference.

In the first place, these two ball clubs starting the World Series today are not quite comparable with the great clubs of the past.

The war has set baseball back five years or so, and before anybody reminds me that the Red Sox were something less than wonderful in losing to the St. Louis Cardinals last year, I will say that we, too, were a little short of those super-teams.

But beyond all that, I have had an opportunity all season to hit against these Yankees.

You can take my word for it that, while they may not be among the all-time best, they are tough. They won the pennant by 12 games in a tough league.

The Dodgers struggled to their pennant in what I am sure is an all-around easier circuit—and that still goes, although the Cardinals beat us last year in the World Series.

I can add truthfully that I am pulling for the Yankees, but that has nothing to do with my opinion. My opinions are based on belief.

The Yankees have a better infield than the Dodgers, to start with and you can't imagine how important that may be.

From all I hear, Bruce Edwards of the Dodgers is a better catcher than anybody the Yankees have to offer.

But the Yankees have a pretty good receiver in Yogi Berra, with several others as understudies. The Yankees are deeper in good catchers than the Dodgers.

I don't think the two outfields can be compared—the Yankees are so far in front with Tommy Henrich, Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Lindell.

And, before I get around to the pitchers, I would just like to say this: DiMaggio deserves the admiration of every baseball fan in the United States.

He has played this season under tremendous physical handicaps because of that heel operation and torn muscles in his neck and legs. But as long as he can pick up a bat he will always be among the greatest.

As for pitchers, I haven't hit against the Dodgers lately, but I can tell you about Shea, Reynolds, Bevins, Newsom, Chandler and Page.

They seem to do pretty good against me.

UMPS EVERYWHERE

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (INS)—The alternate umpires will have to watch the foul lines this year's World Series instead of getting paid for being spectators.

One alternate will sit down near the right field foul line where it reaches the wall, and the alternate ump appointed by the other league will occupy a similar post in left field.

Thus there will be an arbiter sitting under each foul pole to rule on balls that soar out of the park in that area, and so minimize chances for one of those fair or foul disputes.

Everybody's Smiling At Chelsea These Days

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Everybody's smiling at Chelsea High School these days. In the first place, the school hours have been temporarily abbreviated (a minor lunchroom difficulty). In the second place, the football team has gathered unexpected momentum since its scoreless opener (Lynn English) in a drive that may bring the Class B championship to the Red Devils.

And, to add to the happiness, Coach Henry McCarthy has visions of eight of his plucky regulars returning for another grid campaign in 1948.

It's a roseate picture—one that brings back memories of 1944 when Chelsea deadlocked Saugus for a half share of the booty in the Class B title race. There's another Finnegan in the Chelsea backfield; the team, like the '44 club, is one of the lightest in Coach McCarthy's memory; as before, the team started slowly but finished with a grand rush.

This Finnegan, who's in again with the Chelsea fans after his stellar play against Revere (a 26-0 victim), is the 145-pound fullback, brother of George "Sonny" Finnegan. His weight is par for the course as far as the present Red Devil's backfield is concerned, for his running mates hit the scales in the same vicinity—Joe Bevere at 140; Bill Cole at 120; Gene Macomber at 150 and qb Alan Rubenstein, the giant of the group, at 170.

Cole was a starter against Revere when Macomber's ankle injury kept him on the sidelines. Oddly enough, the merry little soul is so tiny that the school has been unable to find a pair of football shoes small enough for him. Cole wears his own, size 5½, to propel his 5.6-inch frame over the gridiron.

The Chelsea line, although weighty at the tackles, packs little other poundage, as high schools go.

End Bill Moore, captain, can boast 175; on the other wing, Ed Holden hits only 150; guard Dave Fitzpatrick tips 165 while on the other side of center Paul Bright, 155, Joe Leonardi forces the needle to 165. Tackles Eli Cohen and Mal Hamburger move into the heavyweight ranks at 180-pounds.

But they're a smashing, gritty group who sliced the bulky Revere line to ribbons in amazing fashion—just as they had torn apart the Somerville line for Chelsea's first victory of the campaign (18-12) and, too, the Red Devils' first big surprise of the season.

Backing up the first stringers, Coach McCarthy has the much valued depth with a complete second crew.

This reserve strength lists George Tkachuk and George Rapchuck at ends; Herb Friedman and Frank Walczewski at tackles; John Greene and Burt Feldman at guards; George Garabedian at center, and backs Bob Mitchell, Ed Houghton, Ed Smith and Cole while Macomber's injury heals.

Chelsea still has a long way to go before claiming any championship, however. There's Saugus Saturday followed by Durfee, Wakefield, Boston College High, and then three Class A clubs, Arlington, Medford and Everett.

Boston schoolboys' hopped into their jam sessions at the Fens Stadium today . . . A single game matched Hyde Park against Charlestown as Kewpie Kilroy made his debut for the Parkers' . . . Tomorrow afternoon (2:30) the first of the double-headers will match Dorchester vs. Brighton and South Boston vs. Brandeis Vocational.

Harlow, Donelli Duck Issue On Crimson-Terrier Game

By BILL GRIMES

First, "Buff" Donelli, B. U.'s new football mentor, and then Coach Dick Harlow, Harvard, refrained during yesterday's press-coaches luncheon from predicting the outcome of next Saturday's Terrier-Crimson game.

"I saw the Harvard-Western Maryland game," admitted Donelli, "and I saw enough not to be too optimistic. I hope, however, to be able to give Dick a few anxious moments."

Then Donelli told about overhearing a couple of Harvard undergraduates and two of his quarterbacks, John Toner and Bill Tighe, voice their opinions of B. U. and its new coach.

"B. U. is loaded, moaned one. 'They have a bunch of tough miners from western Pennsylvania. And their coach is a driver.'

"Lou Beardell is the only Pennsylvanian on our squad," declared Donelli. "But according to my program, there are five boys from the Keystone State on the Harvard squad.

"The Harvard-Western Maryland and the B. U. Mohawks games didn't show anything," concluded Donelli, "but B. U. will be at the Stadium Saturday. And we won't leave anyone at home, unless some of my boys were injured after the Mohawk game."

After paying high tribute to Bert Bell, president of the National Football League, "Clipper" Smith, coach of the Yanks, and Steve Owen, pilot of the New York Giants, for the way they are conducting professional football and then coming out flat-footed that "We could use Bert Bell as head of college football," Harlow stated that he didn't know much about his Harvard squad.

"In two weeks we'll know if we can hit big league pitching," admitted Harlow. "Right now, it's too early to make any prediction. We might beat all of our opponents, or all of them might beat us. Frankly, I don't know what we have."

Harlow agreed with Donelli that neither Harvard nor B. U. derived any benefit from last Saturday's games.

"A game between Western Maryland and Mohawks would be a great contest," Harlow added. "It would be a good Bowl game. But I wouldn't care about seeing it. However, I do expect a tough game from B. U."

The other speakers were Fred "Fish" Ellis of Tufts, Johnny Grinnell of Northeastern, Bell, Owen, "Red" Smith, the Chicago Cubs' bullpen catcher, who is one of Owen's assistants, "Clipper" Smith, of Yanks, Denny Myers of Boston College and John "Ox" Da Grosa of Holy Cross.

Bell came through with the most newsworthy comments.

"The N. F. L. cannot and doesn't want to try to get along without the colleges," Bell declared hotly. "We want to play ball with them.

"I told Tug Wilson, that unless something is done about officials, there won't be any in 10 years. And, also, that I wanted it removed from the records that college officials are barred from working pro games.

"There isn't enough money in college games to entice young officials into that department. The veteran officials are carrying on because of their love of football. If young officials are permitted to work in pro games, they will not only acquire valuable experience but the salary maximum would be increased to approximately $3000, which would be a worthwhile incentive for younger men to enter the Whistle and hornblowing business."

Yanks Click With Fans Despite Tie

By FRED HOEY

An alert, hard-hitting Boston Yanks team established itself with a decisive bang last night at Fenway Park, although it had to settle for a 7-7 tie with the New York Giants, eastern sector titlists.

It was a game that should have been lodged safely in the Boston satchel but the breaks went decidedly against the locals. Once a 70-yard run for a touchdown by Joe Golding was nullified when Rocco Canale was detected holding.

On two occasions, Nick Scollard missed the uprights by inches on field goal attempts. One of these came in the last minute of play from a slight angle.

It was a heart-breaking game for the Yanks after outplaying their veteran opponents. They played smart, heads-up ball.

The game was a signal triumph for Coach "Clipper" Smith, making his debut in the pro ranks. The Yanks had enjoyed the exhibition workouts with other members of the league in the west and the results of these were very evident as they tore into their New York foes.

MURPHY LEADS

Surf fishing for the second time in his life, James F. Murphy, Cambridge City detective yesterday, took the lead in the surf division class of the Marthas Vineyard Striped Bass Derby when he landed a 37-pound, 15 ounce striper. This also gives him the lead in the non resident class.

Murphy was a prisoner of war during the late war. Murphy made his catch on borrowed gear.

Plenty of Birds For Hunters

AUGUSTA, Me., Sept. 30 (AP)—There are plenty of birds but thick foliage will make hunting conditions difficult in Maine woods when the season opens on partridges, woodcock and pheasant tomorrow.

George J. Stobie, state fish and game commissioner, said the foliage was the heaviest in years at this season.

Reports from wardens, he said, indicated a slight increase in grouse, a little better increase in woodcock and "about a 100 per cent increase in pheasants," 16,000 of which were released this year.

Rabbits and gray squirrels also are legal game beginning tomorrow.

YANKEES SCORE 5 RUNS IN FIFTH

By HUCK FINNEGAN

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Sept. 30—The annual mob scene that is called the World Series opened here today between the Yankees and Dodgers before a sardine-packed house of 72,000. The sun was high, the weather brisk, perfect autumnal conditions for the championship setting.

If there was any doubt about the Dodger s starting pitcher—and Burt Shotton tried to keep it a secret—it was disclosed an hour be fore game time. It was Ralph Branca. Yankees choice was Frank Shea.

Branca, visibly nervous, appeared on the bench as the Dodgers started batting practice. Newsmen swarmed around him, so much so that Shotton barked: "Come sit down next to me, Ralph." And to the reporters: "Give the kid a break. Don't tire him out before he goes to work."

Branca took batting practice with the colored Dan Bankhead doing the pitching. Of a sudden photographers, who were milling around the batting cage, rushed to a box near the Dodgers' dugout. There sat Leo Durocher, his wife, Loraine Day, and Danny Kaye.

During Yankee batting practice, Joe DiMaggio whistled line drives to left repeatedly. It was apparent he wasn't going for the long one in this park with its spacious left center field. However, left-handed George McQuinn and Tommy Henrich lofted several hits into the right field bleachers while fans howled ecstacially.

Saddest man in Yankee uniform was crippled Charlie Keller, who cannot play in the Series.

Jackie Robinson caught the eye during Dodgers batting practice. The colored first baseman swung his bat as calmly as if this was a college game and not the biggest test of his career. He bunted several times and hit three pitches to left field. It was evident he was ready.

So much did the crowd interfere with practice that everyone but players were shooed from the field at 12:50, while the Dodgers were still hitting. Yanks, meanwhile, were having a meeting.

As Dodgers took infield practice, Guy Lombardo's band played "Moon Over Brooklyn" and other tunes that might be heaven to Dodgers fans but were anathema to Yank enthusiasts.

Dodger infield had Robinson at first, Eddie Stanky second, Pee Wee Reese shorstop and Spider Jorgensen third. Later, McQuinn, Stirnweiss, Rizzuto and Johnson performed similar chores for the Yanks.

While newsmen fought for sitting space in the improvised press quarters, Lombardo's music pepped things so that Yank fielders were doing a tap-dance while chasing ground balls. Then Al Schacht entertained with his clown act. So the time passed until Shea and Branca began warming up.

Shea, first freshman in American League history to pitch a World Series opener, had a 14-5 record for the year. He was an early season sensation, winning seven in a row, getting two decisions over Hal Newhouser and starting the Yanks on their 19-game winning streak. But he injured his arm in the All-Star game and sat it out until Sept. 18.

He came back smartly then, repeated the following week, and Bucky Harris announced: "He's ready!" and he chose him to face the Dodgers over the more experienced Allie Reynolds, Bobo Newsom and Floyd Bevens.

Branca has been a Dodger mainstay all season. The big New York University product was a 21-game winner and though he had to be relieved many times during the season, Shotton thought enough of him to give him the opening game assignment.

Attendance at First Game Will Set Record

YANKEE STADIUM, N. Y., Sept. 30—Long before either club appeared for batting practice most of the 12,000 capacity bleacher space, the only unsold tickets in the park, had been gobbled up by eager customers. All the 52,925 reserved and box seats had been gone for weeks and the 8000 standing room tickets also had been sold in advance.

The old single game record for a series of 69,900, set in the 1943 classic at the stadium, appeared doomed and a gross gate of about $300,000 was estimated. These figures would send the player pool, collected out of the first four gates, to near-record proportions.

The flag-decked stadium, home of 10 world championship clubs and most of the Yanks' 15 pennant winners, was getting back to the series whirl for the first time since 1943 when the New Yorkers humbled the St. Louis Cardinals.

The usual efficient cordon of the city's finest herded early comers into the right gates and maintained a reasonable degree of sanity among the baseball-happy Flatbush and Bronx fans. It was the first subway series since the memorable 1941 "dropped third strike" affair betwen these same two clubs and the diamond bugs were making the most of it.

People who had bought up the standing room last week came out early to do their standing at the best vantage points.

Neither club had announced its division of player shares, but it was reported that Leo Durocher, who managed the Brooks until he was suspended by Comr. A. B. Chandler shortly before opening of the season, had been voted a slice of the Dodger melon. Whether this action had been approved by the commissioner's office could not be learned.

The first "homer" was hit by catcher Ralph Houk when he smashed a pitch into the left-field seats

Bounding out of a clubhouse meeting with Harris, the main Yankee contingent appeared shortly before noon. Even Joe Page, the dependable bullpen pitcher, took his turn with the first string.

A scattering of boos and cheers greeted Eddie Stanky, the first Dodger to step out of the dugout. The Dodgers loosened up on the sidelines while the Yanks polished up their hitting.

Pitchers Rex Barrey, Hugh Casey, Dan Bankhead and Hal Gregg were members of the early brigade, automatically scratching their names off the list of possible Dodgers starters. All have done most of their work in the bullpen.

UN SEES GAME BY TELEVISION

FLUSHING MEADOWS, N. Y., Sept. 30 (INS)—The opening game of the 1947 World Series was viewed over television at the United Nations today, in between sessions of the General Assembly.

World Series Sidelights

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP)—World Series opening day dawned cool and clear with no sign of the rain that was forecast last night.

Except for 14,000 bleacher seats, mammoth Yankee Stadium was sold out 10 days ago for the first meeting of the New York Yankees, American League champions, and their rivals from across the city, the Brooklyn Dodgers, National League winners.

By 8 a. m. well over 10,000 persons were in line, aiming at the bleachers.

A World Series single game attendance record of 73,000, with a series record gate of $300,000, appeared certain to be established.

Offers up to $50 were made to scalpers for single seats in what was the most fantastically inflated demand in baseball records. The established price for box seats is $8, reserved seats $6, standing room $4 and bleachers $1.

The sharp turn for the better in the weather served to intensify the demand for tickets. In early morning the weather bureau forecast "mostly sunny, windy and cool" for the afternoon, with a temperature in the lower 50's.

The scene at Yankee Stadium was one of confusion and hilarity. For blocks around there was no space to park an automobile. Street vendors sold pennants and souvenirs.

Men and women shivered in the brisk breeze, and sat on improvised seats to play cards or listen to portable radios.

A long line extended outside the gates where holders of $4 standing room tickets were to be admitted.

Deputy Chief Inspector Joseph Goldstein, in charge of police arrangements for handling the swelling throng, had four captains, eight lieutenants, 25 sergeants and 300 patrolmen on duty, with 24 mounted policemen and 24 traffic patrolmen posted near the stadium.

The two clubs last met in a World Series in 1941 when Leo "The Lip" Durocher was manager of the Dodgers. The Yankees won, four games to one.

Durocher was suspended in the spring by Commissioner A. B. Chandler. Shotton, an obscure scout in the Dodger system, but an experienced baseball manager, was summoned by Branch Rickey to take charge. He did so effectively that the Dodgers won the championship by a margin of five games.
